CLASS OF 1943, UNITED STATES NAVAL ACADEMY, GRADUATES

FOLLOWING is a roster of the midshipmen of the United States Naval Academy who were graduated yesterday, Friday, 19 June, arranged in the order of their standing for the four-year course. The class is the first to be graduated after three years' training.

Midshipmen with a star affixed to their names have attained not less than 85% of the multiple, and accordingly, were graduated "with distinction." Those whose standing is from 52 to 410, both inclusive, (as shown by the order of merit), have attained less than 85% but not less than 75% of the multiple, and accordingly were graduated "with credit."

Editors' Discussion Of Second Front Significant In Light of Molotov Visit

A White House announcement which revealed that Russian Foreign Commissar Molotov had been a Presidential guest and that during the momentous discussions between these officials "full understanding was reached with regard to the urgent task of creating a second front in Europe in 1942" raised higher the never-waning public interest in the possibility and probability of a second European front this year. Visits of high-ranking American military officials to London and news of R. A. F. devastating raids on German cities were regarded as indicative forerunners of the White House statement. Therefore, it is expedient to examine the comment of editors with regards to the opening of a western front in Europe.

The Augusta, Ga., Chronicle outspoken in its belief that the opening of a second front is a near-future expectancy says; "If Herr Hitler glances upon the wall today he can clearly see the handwriting there. An allied invasion is imminent. The Nazi Fuehrer soon will have his hands full both in the East and in the West." Suggestion as to the size of the air attacks which observers believe will certainly precede the launching of any second front action is made by the Chronicle when it says; "Our pilots—both American and British—will undertake to point out to the Nazi Luftwaffe some of the mistakes it made in unsuccessfully trying to soften up the British Isles for invasion. Where Herr Goering sent 300 bombers over London, our forces will send 1,000 or more over the continent."

More restrained is the comment of the New York, N. Y., Times which says of a second front; "Natural and healthy as this impulse is, it cannot and will not be allowed to stampede the responsible war strategists into premature action. Since even the amateurs know that a retreat from Europe would be the worst of all disasters to the cause of the United Nations, only a brilliant chance of success would justify the risks of an immediate continental invasion. And even if such a land offensive is planned, and undoubtedly it is projected for the future," suggests the Times, "it would have to be preceded by an air offensive on the most massive scale. This was the German technique."

The Savannah, Ga., News concurs with the Times in stating that "there has been every indication that the Allies are preparing for an offensive, but none that they are ready for it right now. One of the greatest difficulties to be overcome is the problem of transport and supply. The shortage of shipping enters largely into it," the News cautions, stating, however, "that as far as air power is concerned, the Allies are ready or soon will be." Therefore the News, in a summation of its second front discussion, says: "It is well that Americans and Britons continue to exercise patience until the military leaders feel reasonably sure that they are ready to deal a real knockout blow to Hitler and his cohorts."

The New York, N. Y., Herald Tribune does not exclude mention of a second front from an editorial discussion of the military situation. "What is fairly plain," the Tribune offers, "is that while the Axis is now being forced to weigh alternative plans pretty carefully, the United Nations for the first time in the war, have some choice of their own before them. The fact that so many of our high officers are in London does not mean that they are talking only about the western front; one can discuss China or Siberia as readily in London as anywhere else," the Tribune reminds. "In any examination of the total picture, two or three facts would be obvious. If Australia and India can be regarded as reasonably safe for the time being, the best check to Japan would be by massive air attack delivered from Siberia, or, if that is politically impracticable, by flying air power to aid the Chinese. To any move which Hitler may make in Europe—in Russia, in eastern Mediterranean or North Africa—the best answer," asserts the Tribune, "and the one most quickly deliverable is a western front set up first by tremendous air attacks and as soon thereafter as possible by landings on the ground."

The Future of the Battleship

Passage this week by the House of Representatives of the gigantic 1,900,000-ton combatant ship building program for the Navy, with the accompanying statements that no battleships were included in its provisions and that the Navy has suspended its plans for the new class of 58,000-ton battleships brought sharply to the fore the question as to the future composition of naval surface craft.

The new measure puts enormous emphasis on aircraft carriers, 500,000 tons being allotted for that purpose—sufficient to build 20 to 30 depending on their size. Before 7 Dec. 1941, the United States had seven aircraft carriers in service and 11 under construction. In addition it has been stated that a number of the vessels originally laid down as cruisers have been converted, while still on the ways, into carriers, while the Maritime Commission recommendation for the conversion of a number of merchant ships into carriers also has been approved and is now in the course of execution.

The remainder of the new construction bill provides 500,000 tons for cruisers and 900,000 tons for destroyer and destroyer escort vessels. The Navy is permitted, under the terms of the bill, to vary the tonnage of any of these categories by 30 per cent so long as the total of 1,900,000 is not exceeded, thus permitting the construction of even more carriers.

The original statement concerning the suspension of the battleship program came from Senator Brewster, a member of the Senate Naval Committee. He said the plans for the new "super-ships" have been abandoned. Apparently he meant the "Montana" class, which was scheduled to include the Montana, Ohio, and Maine (scheduled to be commissioned in 1945) and the New Hampshire and Louisiana, scheduled for 1946. This would indicate that the "Iowa" class, already under construction, will be completed as battleships or converted into carriers. This class was planned to be of approximately 45,000 tons each and, it is understood, were to be capable of about 35 knots. In that class are: Iowa and New Jersey, scheduled to be commissioned next year; and the Missouri, Wisconsin, Illinois, and Kentucky, promised for 1944. The "Washington class," approximately 35,000-tonners, are mostly all in service. It includes the North Carolina, South Dakota, Indiana, Washington, Massachusetts, and Alabama.

In view of the reports of the battles of Midway and the Coral Seas, where surface ships were never committed one against the other but all action was aircraft against surface ships, Senator Brewster's statements were widely hailed. However, Representative Vinson, chairman of the Naval Committee and close confidant of Naval leaders, stated the next day that he does not believe the day of the big ship is gone. He described the continuation of battleship construction as "essential insurance" against a possibility that future carrier losses might turn sea warfare into an "old-fashioned slugging match."

It is quite probable that a number of elements entered into the decision to suspend further action on the "Montana" class. Primarily, of course, sea actions have emphasized the value of the carrier and the fact that battlewagons without aerial defense are prey to aerial attack. Pearl Harbor, for the United States, and the Prince of Wales and the Repulse, for England, revealed the vulnerability of battleships to air attack. On the other hand, however, the Germans demonstrated in the battle of Dover Straits that adequate aerial defense can insure the safety of big ships even in such restricted waters as the English Channel, while the battles in the Pacific have also demonstrated the vulnerability of the carrier. A great factor is the time element. It takes four years to build a battleship and two or less for the smaller ships—and we need them quickly. Still further influencing the situation is the steel problem. With a steel shortage in sight it is infinitely wiser to spread our supply over a larger number of smaller, effective carriers and cruisers, than to devote it to a small number of battleships.

A logical conclusion is that, for the time being, events have forced the carrier to replace the battleship as the "backbone" of the fleet. However, it can not be assumed that our naval leaders are abandoning the "battlewagon" on which they have so long placed their main dependence.

Appointments in Regular Army

The President this week nominated 124 officers of the Army of the United States for appointment as second lieutenants in the Regular Army. The officers are all on active duty and are the remainder of the eligibles who passed examinations last summer. The first of this group was appointed in February of this year filling allowable 1942 vacancies at that time with the exception of those reserved for the Military Academy graduating class.

Also nominated for appointment were some non-promotion list officers.

These 124 appointments are to be followed, probably about the middle of August, by the appointment of officers under the new regulations, War Department Circular No. 80. These in turn will be followed by the appointment of about 52 honor graduates of the R. O. T. C.

Of the 124 appointees, 39 went into the Infantry, 22 in the Coast Artillery Corps, 18 in the Field Artillery, 13 in the Ordnance Department, 9 each in Cavalry and Quartermaster Corps, 8 in the Corps of Engineers, 5 in the Signal Corps and 1 in the Finance Department.

Office of Strategic Services

Simultaneous with the creation of the Office of War Information to which he named Mr. Elmer Davis as director, President Roosevelt on 13 June established the Office of Strategic Service to which Col. William J. Donovan was designated as director.

Under provisions of the executive military order, the Office of Strategic Services will operate under the direction and supervision of the United States Joint Chiefs of Staff. With Colonel Donovan in London this week, officials in the Office of Strategic Services said that the composition of the office and the duties which it will perform are as yet a matter to be officially determined by the joint chiefs of staff.

The new office superseded the office of Co-ordinator of Information which was headed by Colonel Donovan also.

Specialist Chief's Rank

Current War Department orders designate Director General of the Army Specialist Corps, Dwight F. Davis, Washington, D. C., as having the relative rank of major general with the first Army Specialist Corps serial number, S-1. War Department disclosed yesterday. Those who hold the rank of brigadier general are: Deputy Directors Henry P. Seideman, William O. Hotchkiss, and Charles S. Cheston.

The War Program

THEY DELIVER THE GOODS

THEIR movement shrouded in a veil of secrecy which is indeed their own protection, ships of the United States Merchant Marine leave daily from the ports of the world, carrying in their holds the materiel of war on which our fighting troops are so dependent. And in 1942, just as in the World War years, men of the merchant marine are unflinchingly facing the war dangers of the sea, most potent of which is surely the torpedo launched so often by an unseen enemy.

It was in belated recognition of the heroism of these men that Congress passed and President Roosevelt wholeheartedly approved legislation authorizing the Maritime Commission to award a Merchant Marine Distinguished Service Medal. This medal will be awarded to each person in the Merchant Marine, who on or after 3 Sept. 1939, has distinguished himself by an outstanding deed of conduct or service in the line of duty.

Thus, the people of the nation through their Congress and Chief Executive will, by the award of these medals, reward the seamen who are constantly risking their lives so that America's war cargoes may be delivered. These seamen have asked no reward, but have through the course of the emergency and the war which superseded the national emergency continued to render conspicuous service. They have accepted the dangers of shipping during war as part of their jobs, and their heroic reactions to bombings and torpedoings have not been in anticipation of an award of any kind. It has been rather the natural inclination of these seamen.

Indeed, there was no provision for award of a medal to seamen when:

Seaman Oscar Chappell, whose ship was torpedoed three times within one minute, burned to death sticking at his post at the helm. He remained there, when escape was possible, desperately steering the vessel into the wind to give shipmates on the fore'side a chance to escape from the flaming ship. Of this act, a crewmate said: "He was at the wheel, fire was shooting up all about him. He saw several men trapped by flames that the wind was blowing toward them. He turned the ship hard right which took the flames off the men on the bow, but threw them directly upon himself. He lasted only a few minutes after that." Then the all-embracing tribute of that shipmate: "He died at his helm."

Nor was there any thought of medal award in the mind of that tanker captain whose vessel was sunk in the Gulf of Mexico. It was he who remained on the bridge of the ship after she was struck, directing the abandonment of the crew. The ship went down within a very few minutes, and the captain was sucked under the water with the ship. He disappeared for some seconds, at the end of which he shot up to the surface. Helped into a lifeboat, though painfully injured, he took charge of the survivors, set a course and steered through the night until a port was reached. By that time he was so weakened by loss of blood and pain of his injuries that he collapsed and had to be taken to a hospital.

Nothing could have been farther from the mind of ship's doctor L. H. Conly than reward of any kind when he delivered the eight pound baby of Mrs. Desanka Mohorovic, wife of a Yugoslav consul in New York, while a lifeboat pitched in the waves. Without anesthesia, working in total darkness with only the most simple of equipment, Dr. Conly, who had sustained two broken ribs, successfully delivered the child after his ship had been torpedoed off the Atlantic Coast sometime in March.

These are the deeds of heroism which American seamen are performing. These are the types of deeds which the American people want to see rewarded. It is in recognition of such deeds, therefore, that the Merchant Marine Distinguished Service Medal has been created.

Maritime Commission officials who will supervise the award of these medals, and they emphasize that the award will be

Report Selection Bill; May Save Pass-Overs

Prompt approval by the House Naval Affairs Committee late last week of legislation H. R. 7160, suspending Navy selection laws for the duration of the war, was followed this week by a request by Committee Chairman Vinson for a rule for prompt consideration of the bill by the House.

The rule will insure passage of the bill by the House this coming week. Meanwhile the Senate is expected to begin hearings on Monday on a companion bill introduced by Senate Naval Committee Chairman Walsh, so that final passage of the bill by 30 June is possible.

Every effort is being made to obtain passage of the bill by that date in order to prevent the retirement on 30 June of those Navy and Marine Corps officers who have twice failed of selection.

However, it is understood that the Navy definitely does not desire to lose the services of this group of officers and probably will take steps to save them if it appears that H. R. 7160 will not become law by 30 June.

Preferring to proceed with as little special consideration for groups as is possible, the Navy hopes that H. R. 7160—which will automatically save the group from retirement—will become law by 30 June. However, those pass-overs below rank of lieutenant commander already have been saved, for lieutenants who had failed of selection twice were temporarily promoted to lieutenant commander this week with about 4,000 other junior officers of the Navy. The selection act states that lieutenants who have twice failed of selection shall be retired on 30 June of the year of last failure of selection, but since the officers have been promoted they are no longer lieutenants and therefore, the Navy considers, do not come within the provisions of the act.

As for the senior officers, though a definite decision has not yet been reached, it is thought in some quarters that retirement orders will not be issued for the group on 30 June, but will be delayed a few days, if necessary, to permit the new law to go into force. Once the bill becomes law it will not be necessary to retire them.

The House Naval Committee's unanimous vote to report H. R. 7160 came after a morning of discussion of the bill on 12 June during which Rear Adm. Randall Jacobs, Chief of Naval Personnel, and other naval officers testified in support of the measure.

Several amendments to the bill were adopted. All but one of these were listed in the letter of the Navy Department to Representative Vinson which was printed in full in the 13 June issue of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL.

One of these amendments, that which would have prohibited promotion of dental or chaplain officers above rank of captain, was not pressed nor adopted. Instead, a bill specifically providing for promotion of a dental officer to rank of rear admiral was offered this week.

Another amendment was offered in committee to qualify the provision that upon enactment of the bill those officers already selected for promotion shall be promoted. As amended such promotion is left to the discretion of the Secretary of the Navy in order that he may have power not to promote any officer whose conduct since he was selected indicates that he would not perform duties of the higher grade properly.

Testimony disclosed that of 1,718 retired officers recalled to active duty, 574 have been temporarily promoted, while of about 15,000 active list line and staff officers, 2,669 have been temporarily promoted, 21 of whom were advanced for conduct in action. Recommendations for temporary promotions of approximately 4,000 junior officers had been made.

Mr. Vinson stated temporary promotions did not go far enough into the ranks, and bring up junior officers who have use and new ideas.

It was revealed that six or seven officers passed over by Selection Boards have been decorated for conduct in action. "Where the human equation enters,"

Boosts 10 AAF Officers

The President on 15 June 1942 nominated Maj. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney to the temporary grade of lieutenant general of the Army of the United States. General McNarney is Deputy Chief of Staff.

Lt. Gen. Delos C. Emmons, AUS, was nominated to the permanent grade of major general in the United States Army.

Brigadier Generals Ralph Royce and Willis H. Hale were selected to be temporary major generals in the Army of the United States.

The following colonels in the Air Corps were chosen temporary brigadier generals of the Army of the United States: Edwin S. Perrin, Ennis C. Whitehead, Kenneth N. Walker, Carl W. Connell, Albert L. Sneed and Nathan F. Twining.

The Senate immediately confirmed the nominations.

Allotment-Allowance Bill

Congressional action was completed this week on S. 2467, the allotment-allowance bill, after the Senate accepted a clerical correction on Thursday, 18 June, to the conference report which was adopted by that body on Monday, 15 June without debate, and adopted by the House, 84-0, after a short discussion.

The bill now goes to the President whose approval at an early date is indicated.

In general the bill provides for government allowances to dependents of service men, these allowances being matched by an allotment of $22 or $27 by the man concerned, depending on the number of dependents. The bill covers men of the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh pay grades of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard.

S. 2025 Signed, Forces To Get Raise 30 June

The interdepartmental pay bill became law this week with approval on Wednesday, 17 June, of the measure.

President Roosevelt's signature on S. 2025 ended fears that the extra increases voted for enlisted men by the House might cause the bill to be vetoed.

Approval came just one week after the 20th anniversary of the signing of the pay act of 10 June 1922.

That no time will be lost in getting the actual increases in the hands of service personnel—the new rates are effective from 1 June—was seen in the immediate dispatch of orders to finance officers in the field, and instructions to officers to leave blank the amounts in their June pay vouchers.

Effects of the new pay bill will be felt by all classes of personnel immediately. The bill reached the White House on 15 June and was approved without delay. The additional money will be in the hands of most service personnel on 30 June. The rest should receive the increases by 31 July at the latest.

Unlike some service personnel measures, the new pay act is very clear by its own terms. Disbursing officers of the War and Navy Departments this week told the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL that they would not require any advance decisions by the Comptroller General on any phases of the bill. Of course, such decisions probably will be required later on, when individuals make various claims under the act.

The Pay Bill in Brief

Following is a resume of all of the more important changes to be made by the pay bill. It is suggested that all service personnel save this data for future reference:

Effective: From 1 June 1942. That is, pay for June will reflect the new rates, though the increases may not be received by some until 31 July.

Payable: Finance officers expect to make payments at the new rates on 30 June, if bill is signed without delay.

OFFICERS

Base pay: 1. Increases base pay of second lieutenants and ensigns from $1,500 to $1,800 per annum. Other rates as at present.

2. Retains present requisites of service before officers may receive pay of a higher period, but removes requirement that an officer must serve a certain number of years before he may receive pay of grade. Also provides that officers shall receive pay of temporary grade.

3. Increase in base pay of first period will be reflected in retired pay of that grade.

Subsistence: Increases value of daily ration from 60 cents to 70 cents. Permits second lieutenant with dependents to draw two rations.

Rental: Increases rental allowances as follows:

Period	Dependents		No Dependents

Bataan Nurse Reports

The story of the heroic duties performed by Army nurses in the Philippines and the thrilling description of how a group of these nurses made their way from Bataan Peninsula to Corregidor, and thence, when the fall of that bastion was imminent, to Australia was reported to Col. Julia O. Flikke, Army Nurse Corps Superintendent, this week by Nurse Mary G. Lohr.

And in recounting this story for her chief, Miss Lohr revealed that 63 Army nurses are now believed to be Japanese prisoners of war—nurses for whom there were no facilities for escape, and who remained to care for the wounded. Miss Lohr, incidentally, was among the last group to leave Corregidor by plane for Australia.

She explained how the nurses who were picked to make the plane trip—and she says the method of choice is unknown—were given one hour's notice and were then warned to maintain as a strict secret the nature of their forthcoming journey.

Tragic interjection is Miss Lohr's disclosure to Colonel Blanchfield report that one of the two planes which left Corregidor for the trip to Australia was disabled somewhere in the Philippines and that its crew and passengers were forced to escape into the hills.

Miss Lohr took her oath of office as Chief Nurse this week in the Office of the Superintendent, and has been assigned to temporary duty at Walter Reed General Hospital, Washington, D. C.

Important Ordnance Change

The assignment of Maj. Gen. Charles T. Harris, Jr., Assistant to the Chief of Ordnance, to assume command of the Aberdeen, Md., Proving Ground, effective today, 20 June, heads a list of changes among other key Ordnance officer personnel.

General Harris, former Chief of the Industrial Service, succeeds Brig. Gen. Rolland W. Case, who assumes new duties in the Office of the Chief of Ordnance; while Brig. Gen. Burton O. Lewis, deputy chief of the Industrial Service, has been relieved from his present assignment in the Office of the Chief of Ordnance and named Deputy Chief of the Boston, Mass., Ordnance District. He succeeds Col. James S. Crawford, who goes to the Iowa Ordnance Plant.

Brig. Gen. Walter P. Boatwright, commanding general, Frankford, Pa., Arsenal will assume duties on 30 June as Deputy Chief of the New York Ordnance District; and Brig. Gen. Hugh C. Minton, former executive officer, Office of the Chief, will become Deputy Chief of the Pittsburg, Pa., Ordnance District. Col. James Kirk, has been relieved from assignment at the Frankford Arsenal and ordered to the Office of the Chief. Col. Frank J. Atwood, Chief of the Inspection Section, Office of the Chief, has been named Deputy Chief of the Rochester, N. Y., Ordnance District; and Col. Alfred B. Quinton, jr., assistant chief of the Industrial Service for purchasing, has similarly been transferred to duty as Deputy Chief of the Detroit, Mich., Ordnance District. So too has Col. Guy H. Drewry been relieved from duty in the Office of the Chief as Chief of the Small Arms Division and named Deputy Chief of the Hartford, Conn., Ordnance District.

Warrant Officer Changes

The War Department announced on 18 June, the temporary appointment of the following as Warrant Officers, (Junior Grade), Army of the United States:

M. Sgt. Ulysses E. Williams, St. Sgt. James W. McEachern, 1st Sgt. John White, M. Sgt. Sydney Quayle, Sgt. Harold W. Goslin, 1st Sgt. Leonard A. Dodge, M. Sgt. James A. Muse, 1st Sgt. Homer D. Williams, and M. Sgt. John E. Sutherland.

Warrant Officer (Junior Grade) Joseph Kaplan has been relieved from duty with the 1208 Station Complement, Camp Upton, N. Y., and assigned to duty with the Engineer Section, Memphis, Tenn., General Depot.

Warrant Officer (Junior Grade) Samuel C. Runkle has been assigned to the Signal Corps School, Ft. Monmouth. His previous station also was Ft. Monmouth.

Schedule of Maneuvers

Desert fighting, jungle fighting, air-ground operations, movements of small task forces and night marching and fighting are all to be stressed in this year's Army field maneuvers, according to the War Department announcement which lists the following schedule:

II Corps, 13 July-6 Sept., Carolina Area.

VIII Corps, 3 Aug.-20 Sept., Louisiana Area.

I Corps, 17 Aug.-11 Oct., Carolina Area.

VII Corps, 24 Aug.-18 Oct., Desert Training Center.

III Corps, 14 Sept.-8 Nov., Camp Forrest, Tenn.

IV Corps, 21 Sept.-8 Nov., Louisiana Area.

The general plan has been so arranged that maneuver periods requiring the cooperation of the Army Air Forces and the Armored Force will not conflict. The plan calls for only more seasoned troops in the operations. Newly-formed Divisions will continue their basic training schedules and, upon completion, will engage in exercises similar to those of the more advanced organizations.

Maneuvers will be limited to troops within Army Corps. One objective is to train troops to operate as task forces. All units, ground and air, must be trained to operate effectively and smoothly in the prosecution of joint missions. Also, the maneuvers will be designed to condition troops both mentally and physically for the job that lies ahead.

Would Promote Retired Generals

The Senate Military Affairs Committee this week reported H. R. 6081, authorizing the advancement on the retired list of Maj. Gen. James G. Harbord to lieutenant general, and the similar advancement of six brigadier generals to the rank of major general.

Brigadier generals who would be advanced with the enactment of the bill are: Joseph C. Castner, Harley B.

Ferguson, William P. Jackson, George H. Jamerson, Julian P. Lindsey, and Paul A. Wolf. Provisions of the bill stipulate that there should be no pay increase resultant.

Gen. Mitchell's Son

Ft. Knox, Ky.—John Mitchell, son of the late Maj. Gen. William (Billy) Mitchell, former chief of the Air Corps, AEF, received his commission as a second lieutenant on 13 June along with 482 classmates who were graduated from the Armored Force Officer Candidate School. The 21-year-old corporal who came to Ft. Knox 24 Feb. of this year from Ft.

Sill, Okla., artillery replacement center to join the Armored Force because he wanted to get into action, was scheduled to graduate with the 23 May class, but was held over until the present one because of illness.

Lt. Mitchell was a technical supervisor for Warner Brothers in Hollywood before his induction in Milwaukee, 10 Oct. 1941. His mother lives in Alexandria, Va.

Army Officers' Retirements

With the end of June only a few days away, indications at the War Department pointed to retention on active duty of about two-thirds of the officers, 60 years of age or over, who will go on the retired list that day.

On 30 June that provision of the service-in-grade promotion act which calls for retirement of officers below grade of brigadier general who are over 60 years of age, and brigadier generals who are over 62 years of age will go into effect. On that date 170 colonels, 103 lieutenant colonels and 14 majors will go on the retired list.

Of that number it is expected that approximately 150 colonels, 70 lieutenant colonels and five majors will be recalled to active duty effective as of the date of retirement. The officers to be retained are filling a variety of assignments—in the War Department, in Corps Area Service Commands, as professors of military science and tactics, and the like.

Army Flight Officers

The Senate this week approved legislation, S. 2553, creating the grade of flight officer in the Army Air Forces, but the House Military Affairs Committee, after bitter debate on a companion bill, H. R. 7129, turned the matter over to its aviation subcommittee with instructions to investigate why the War Department now favors the measure after opposing a somewhat similar bill a couple of years ago.

The bill passed by the Senate provides that all persons who hereafter take flight training in the Army shall do so as aviation cadets, and upon graduation shall be commissioned either as second lieutenants in the Army of the United States or as flight officers. Flight officers shall have the rank, pay and allowances of warrant officer (junior grade) and shall be entitled to the $150 uniform allowance paid to newly commissioned officers.

IN THE AIR . . . ON THE GROUND . . . AT SEA—the success of today's synchronized warfare depends largely on perfect timing. To supply the American armed forces with precision instruments and special timing devices is now the job of Elgin craftsmen

● "Bombs away!" comes the brisk voice of the bombardier over the inter-com.

The navigator glances at his hack watch . . . signals his radio operator . . . and the report goes out, "Bombs away 12:46 P . . . mission completed . . . heading home!"

For the navigator and pilot, however, the mission is only half over. There is the responsibility for bringing the bomber on the target—and for getting it safely and swiftly back home!

In plotting his pilot's course, the navigator depends on celestial observations and, oftentimes, dead reckoning. Such calculations can be made only with the aid of accurate, split-second timing by special navigation watches.

U. S. Army Aircraft Navigation Hack Watches are now created by Elgin on government order.

Elgin is also turning out many other types of precision instruments and special timing devices for America's armed forces. To this work Elgin brings the finest scientific facilities in the watch-making world . . . plus a craftsmanship developed through four generations.

Every Elgin precision instrument is thoroughly American. All the parts are created in the Elgin factory—the largest in the world devoted to the manufacture of fine timepieces.

"All the Facts Possible"

That the Government is giving out all facts on the war that it is possible to give without aiding its enemies, and that everybody should beware of idle rumors which float about when least expected were statements by Capt. Leland P. Lovette, USN, who went through the attack on Pearl Harbor, before the Work-War Conference of America's Young Men at Dallas, Tex., 18 June 1942. This meeting was held at the 23rd Annual Convention of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce.

"It must be remembered that all enemy propaganda is used to further a clear-cut military, diplomatic or economic objective," said Captain Lovette. "We do not always know quite what the objective is, but sometimes from the propaganda we gain the clue. You can do a great service to dissect, knockdown, and explain this 'hokum' to the credulous and the gullible.

"Your Government is trying to give you the facts—when it does not in any manner give aid and comfort to the enemy. To my knowledge no information has been purposely suppressed because of the psychological effect it may have on the people. The Army and Navy in this war feel that their reputation from the standpoint of Public Relations rests on a reputation for factual accuracy. In short, our communiques and press releases must stand up in the light of history. It is hard on people who have enjoyed a free press to read often very meager accounts of action in the field, but remember that our leaders have secret military and naval plans that must not be compromised. I ask of all to have patience. The good news and the bad will be told."

Most Axis propaganda, he said, falls under two main classes, which are:

"(1) Terror propaganda is used by the Axis with often devastating results in order to intimidate women and children and strike terror to those who cannot bear to hear and read of the terrible effects of bombings, ships sinking at sea, burning cities and all the horrible aspects of modern war. This form of intimidation has been used on most European countries before they became 'slave nations' and bowed to the yoke of their despoilers.

"(2) There is next the varied Nazi propaganda that is pitched for the mentality and racial prejudices of particular groups. One religion is pitted against another, Gentile against Jew, White Man against Negro—yes even nation played against nation. Such a diabolically planned technique has been skillfully concocted by some of the sharpest brains in the enemy country. It is a form of propaganda, often so subtle, that it takes an expert to detect it, yet it may have a most damaging effect: we must ever be on guard against it."

Retired Fleet Commanders

Included among important service bills signed by the President this week was S. 2285, which provides that Navy officers who have served a year or more as admirals or vice admirals in command of fleets or subdivisions of fleets shall retire in such higher rank.

Thus, the bill as signed gives to fleet commanders the same retirement privileges as are now enjoyed by chiefs of bureaus. When retired, the officer whose service meets the legislation's requirement could be advanced to his highest rank at the discretion of the President, with the consent of the Senate.

In signing the legislation, President Roosevelt, who only recently presented the Gold Star to Admiral Thomas C. Hart, USN, in lieu of a second Distinguished Service Medal, once again paid honor to the Asiatic Fleet commander-in-chief, for included in the bill as passed by the House and Senate is the following: "The President is further authorized, without reference to the power conferred upon him by this Act, to continue with the rank of admiral on the retired list the officer who, as commander-in-chief of the Asiatic Fleet, rendered conspicuous and distinguished service in operations against the enemy in the Far East from 7 Dec. 1941 until 14 Feb. 1942."

Admiral Hart, of course, would be privileged to retire in his highest rank under the main section of the bill. The second section has been inserted as Congress' testimony to the excellent manner in which Admiral Hart fulfilled his duties as commander of Naval units in the Southwest Pacific.

The right to retire in higher rank conferred by the bill may be extended to officers who hereafter serve, or who in the past have served, as fleet commanders for one year or more. No increase in pay shall accrue from such advancement.

Navy Nominations

The Senate this week confirmed the nominations of five Navy captains to be temporary rear admirals, and received the nominations of two other captains and a number of other officers for promotion in the Regular Navy.

Confirmed as rear admirals, temporary, were: Capt. Frederick C. Sherman, Walden L. Ainsworth, Norman Scott, Howard H. Good and Mahlon S. Tisdale.

Nominated for promotion to rear admiral in the Navy were Capt. Daniel J. Callaghan and Capt. Theodore S. Wilkinson. Nominated for promotion to captain was Comdr. Gail Morgan.

Admiral's New Flagship

Admiral Ernest J. King, Commander in Chief of the United States Fleet, on 17 June 1942 ran up his pennant on the USS Dauntless at the Washington Navy Yard and made his official flagship of what was once the yacht Delphine, belonging to Mrs. Anna Dodge Dillman.

Navy Women's Reserve

Further hearings on legislation to create a women's corps in the Naval Reserve are scheduled for Monday, 22 June, by the Senate Naval Affairs Committee, it was learned this week.

The House has passed a bill setting up a Women's Naval Reserve as an integral part of the Naval Reserve, with its members enjoying all rank and privileges accorded to male members of the Reserve.

As a result of objections of many Senators, a compromise measure was introduced in the Senate, providing that the corps shall be a part of the Reserve, but its officers shall command only in the corps, shall be limited as to numbers, and that members shall not be eligible for service pensions, etc., but shall receive instead the benefits of the Employees' Compensation Act.

This bill, too, has met objections, it being argued that the corps should operate with the Navy, but not as a part of it, in the same manner as the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps operates with the Army.

Restrict Navy Radiograms

The Navy Department announces that only in case of extreme emergency—such as death of a member of the immediate family of the addressee—will its radio be used to send personal messages to Naval vessels or stations outside continental United States. Commandants designated for the clearance of such dispatches are at the 3rd Naval District, New York; 5th Naval District at Norfolk, Va.; 7th Naval District at Miami, Fla.; 8th Naval District at New Orleans, La.; 11th Naval District at San Diego, Calif.; 12th Naval District at San Francisco, Calif.; and 13th Naval District at Seattle, Wash. All other dispatches for Navy personnel will be mailed after censorship by Naval authority for security.

Disposition of Prizes

The Senate Judiciary Committee this week approved a bill, S. 2579, which authorizes the District Courts at New York and San Francisco to act as admiralty courts for the disposition of prizes taken by United States vessels, whether or not the prizes are brought into U. S. waters or taken to the ports of any of the United Nations.

AGAINST THE BACKGROUND OF EXPERIENCE

Against the background of millions of radios built for American homes, RCA now is building radio apparatus to strengthen the worldwide life-lines of American communications ashore, afloat and aloft. Radio has gone to war!

Almost the entire development of radio as we know it took place during the two decades between the last war and this one. During that time, RCA Laboratories worked unceasingly to perfect existing devices and to invent new ones. Out of this research came the finest civilian radio equipment the world has ever seen...and the finest military radio equipment! For the RCA Manufacturing Company is today on a war footing.

Some day, when peace returns, against this dual background of manufacturing experience in peace and war, RCA will turn from military to civilian radio—and gear its production to build new radio and television sets for the home—post-war radios designed to incorporate the latest scientific lessons and discoveries made in RCA Laboratories.

"I did not fly to London to go on the defensive."—LT. GEN. HENRY H. ARNOLD, commanding general, Army Air Forces.

OUR PRIORITY LIST

1. Legislative assurance, now, that our land, sea, and air forces will be maintained at such strengths as may be determined by the War Department General Staff and the General Board of the Navy to be necessary to guard the nation and its interests against any enemy or combination of enemies.
2. Upward revision of pay schedules for commissioned, warrant and enlisted personnel, active and retired; all temporarily promoted officers to receive pay of grade in which serving.
3. A long range study by the General Board of the Navy to the end that an equitable and just system of promotion for the line and staff of the Navy and Marine Corps be enacted into law.
4. Revision of pension laws to assure service widows a living income.
5. Compensation for service personnel who use privately owned automobiles on government business.

JUST AS THE BATTLESHIP evolved from the historic action between the Monitor and the Merrimac at Hampton Roads, so from the clashes of the current war will emerge a new type of vessel which will be the backbone of the Fleet. What that type will be is not yet clear. Under analysis is a mass of data, which includes technical details of operations since the war began, particularly the sinking of the Bismarck, the Prince of Wales and the Repulse, the casualties of the battle of the Java Sea, and now the results of the splendid victories of the Coral Sea and Midway. Very wisely, in the light of the lessons learned to date, Secretary Knox, with the approval of the President, suspended the building of the six mammoth battleships which are in the advanced blue print stage, and probably they never will reach the sea; and pending the development of the new design we are pursuing the conservative course of creating a powerful aircraft carrier, cruiser, destroyer and submarine reinforcement. But our naval constructors and the General Board do not see in this program the final answer to the problem the air torpedo and bomb have produced. That problem was succinctly stated by Rear Admiral Frederick C. Sherman, the commanding officer of the gallant and mourned Lexington, in these words: "No defense force can stop a determined attack by air." The Japanese especially know to their cost the truth of this observation. But the history of war is the history of defense meeting and overtaking offense, as Admiral Sherman unquestionably realizes. So, as more clearly the lessons are learned, they will be applied. Those lessons already establish that air protection does not necessarily safeguard surface ships; that speed and quick maneuverability are essential for such ships; that they must be heavily armored, deck, sides and bottom, and extensively compartmented; and, as to carriers, their vulnerability is so great, their position when launching or recovering planes so perilous, that they constitute comparatively easy prey for an air enemy. We know also that our slow, ponderous battleship in the battle of the Coral Sea, was a hundred miles distant from the battle scene, and their heavy guns were never fired; and in the Midway battle, the Japanese battleships found such weapons useless to defend themselves from the American aircraft. In view of these facts, we can take what comfort we may from the battleship losses we sustained at Pearl Harbor. Within a few months there will be commissioned additional battleships, which better would be transformed into carriers in view of the present superiority the United States and Great Britain enjoy in this vanishing type. The new craft of the battle line we will develop we cannot foresee. But it will be fast—our speedy and maneuverable 8-inch gun cruisers, which we regarded with disfavor are proving their value. They will be protected by thick armor everywhere. They will be covered with anti-aircraft guns. They will have not nine 16-inch guns, but four or six 14-inch guns. And they will have a large force of planes, torpedoes and bombers, with a deck long enough to take off and return.

WHAT PERSONNEL STRENGTH we will have to thrash our enemies is revealed by the forecast of the War Man Power Commission of which Paul V. McNutt is chairman. As part of the testimony in connection with the allotment act now awaiting presidential approval, the Commission stated: "We have 2,000,000 under arms now; we shall have 4,200,000, maybe 4,500,000 by the end of the year; in 1943, 6,000,000 to 7,000,000, and eventually we may have as many as 10,000,000." What gigantic preparations must be made to organize these citizens into the efficient armies we can anticipate from the experience we have had. Functioning under the Chief of Staff and the Deputy Chief of Staff, the latter, Lieutenant General McNarney, who deservedly has been given this high rank, taught and directed by a host of clear thinking and indoctrinated officers, the expansion going on and in prospect will provide the Nation with troops which will surpass the Germans who think themselves unbeatable, and destroy the unspeakable Japanese who machine gun helpless foes parachuting from riddled planes or clinging to rubber rafts.

Service Humor

Those Flying Boys!

An Associated Press dispatch from San Juan was widely printed in newspapers throughout the country this week as follows:

"Teen-age officers of the United States Army Air Forces take a lot of teasing from their older comrades-in-arms, as evidenced by the following notice appearing recently over the bar of the officers' club of the San Juan post: 'Positively no alcoholic beverages will be sold to Air Corps lieutenant colonels under twenty-one unless accompanied by their parents.'"

Presidential action will, we hope, anti-date, the last line contribution of Pvt. 1 cl. "LS" whose verse appears below. Acknowledgement also to Tech. Sgt. "RCP" and Pvt. 1 cl. "ACH," West Coast soldiers, who both coincidentally point out that hero Ray is losing plenty of "hay."

There was once a soldier named Ray,
Who expected an increase in pay,
But delay on the Hill,
Has postponed the bill,
So he keeps waiting; what more shall I say?

No explication is needed for the following limerick, submitted by Ens. "OFT," which will be completed in the 4 July issue.

The good ship Lexington went down in the sea,
It's place insured in our history,
An unflinching crew,
Remained ever true,

ASK THE JOURNAL

SEND your queries to the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL QUESTION EDITOR and an answer will be given in this column as soon as possible after receipt.

E. R. C. and others—An Army warrant officer would salute an officer, just as an officer would first salute an officer of higher grade. Enlisted men do not salute warrant officers, but if they should do so, common courtesy certainly would require return of the salute.

Reader—You are quite correct. There are at present more than 40 Regular Army Medical Administrative Corps officers on active duty who are not pharmacists. Please note story on page 1076 of 30 May issue.

C. A. Y.—Enlisted men serving under Army of U. S. commissions will have the same right to revert to permanent enlisted grades after war as is granted to men serving under Reserve commissions.

R. J. W.—The right of any enlisted man to apply for admission to the Soldier's Home, Washington, D. C., after 20 years' service has been a basic order of the Home for several decades. During the present emergency, however, only enlisted men who are retired for physical disability after 20 years' service are being admitted. A soldier, discharged from the Home, may reenlist in the Army, if he is physically qualified, and the action has the approval of the Adjutant General.

There has recently been forwarded to President Harrison from San Francisco a noteworthy document in a language of the South Sea Islands. It is a plea from King Tebureimora, monarch of Batutari Island, in the Gilbert group, asking that a protectorate over him and his people be established by the United States.

75 Years Ago

Napoleon, it seems, has bought the Schaller portable military forge now at the Paris Exposition, and a very neat and convenient apparatus it is. When shut up, it is a box made of thin iron plates, nineteen inches square and nine inches deep. When opened and built up, it is a forge twice as long.

Education at Disciplinary Bks.

The culmination of a one year's intensive educational program among inmates of the United States Disciplinary Barracks, Ft. Leavenworth, Kans., Col. Converse R. Lewis, Inf., Commandant, was reached 9 June 1942, when 175 diplomas and certificates of vocational proficiency were presented. Ninety inmates were present to receive their diplomas and some 85 had been discharged prior to the exercises and their diplomas were conferred in absentia.

The program of education which was begun a little less than a year ago was conceived for the purpose of providing opportunity for men who had neglected their education during childhood or adolescence. The curriculum was set up and teachers procured from the Works Progress Administration. When these details were completed the entire project was submitted to the State Board of Education of Kansas, and was unanimously approved and accredited, as a High School and Secondary Educational Institution. The diplomas of this school are therefore acceptable in any college or university in the United States not requiring college entrance examinations and which recognize Kansas credits.

The curriculum is divided into three categories: Compulsory—which comprises Literacy, Character Training, and Personal Hygiene; Basic—covers academic work in English, History and Mathematics for grade school and high school, as well as many other subjects which contribute to a well rounded education and vocational proficiency; and Vocational Theory—this provided the basic information essential to vocational training in some 31 different trades and vocations, including commercial subjects.

The project is strictly one of Adult Education and is based on rigid examinations for educational attainment which are administered when the inmate arrives. New banks of tests have been developed and are adapted to problems of adult rather than child education. Unlike most adult education projects, the Barracks has a static enrollment which is essential for the procurement of data and statistics; consequently the eyes of adult educators throughout the country are watching this program with considerable interest in order to secure the most practicable methods in this field.

Service Flag and Button

The Senate Military Affairs Committee has reported and the Senate has passed legislation, S. 2442, providing for design by the Secretary of War of a service flag and a service lapel button for display or wear by members of the immediate family of a person serving in the armed forces during the war.

The bill had the disapproval of the Secretary of War but the endorsement of the Navy Department and the Office of Civilian Defense. The War Department stated that it did not feel it was within its province to prescribe any article for use by civilians, but that the matter should rest with Civilian Defense. The Senate overrode the Army's objections, and "authorized and directed" the Secretary of War to approve the designs.

Hello today!

WHAT's the best day you ever knew? A morning in spring when you were just six years old? The day you graduated? The first time you knew she loved you? When you bought your first car?

No! It's today!

It's today, for young America, because—in spite of war—schools are better, homes are more comfortable and healthful, and the future holds more opportunity than ever before.

It's today, for grown men and women, because they're working and fighting for something worth while. They're learning again the real resources of America and the true strength of American manhood and womanhood.

They're finding that American industry which created things like the electric refrigerator, the radio, the automobile—and made these available to almost a whole people—can become a great weapon to defend the principles which have made America strong and free. They're discovering that the American standard of living has not made them soft, as less fortunate nations have sometimes sneeringly contended, but has given them added reserves of strength and knowledge and skill for a time of crisis.

There's only one day better than today.

It's tomorrow!

Because tomorrow we shall have established the principles for which we are fighting today. Because tomorrow we shall have new materials like plastics, new developments like television, new sciences like electronics to work with. Because tomorrow we shall return with new vigor and new vision to the task of making tomorrow better than today. General Electric, Schenectady, N. Y.

The volume of General Electric war production is so high and the degree of secrecy required is so great that we cannot tell you about it now. When it can be told we believe that the story of industry's developments during the war years will make one of the most fascinating chapters in the history of industrial progress.

LILY-TULIP CUPS ASSURE SIMPLE CLEANLINESS IN WATER SERVICE

TULIP WATER CUP

An inexpensive goose-neck and the addition of LILY-TULIP CUPS will convert a drinking fountain into a sanitary drinking station.

A recent survey of Common* Drinking Fountains revealed the startling fact that drinkers frequently touch the water outlet with their lips. The investigators further noticed that a great many drinkers rinsed their mouths—spit in the fountain bowl, and committed many other infractions. Inexpensive LILY-TULIP CUPS provide simple cleanliness in water service.

* A common drinking facility is any facility not sanitized between uses.

47,877 DRINKERS SURVEYED

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Foreign Affairs—As was to have been expected, the Chungking government of China objects to the devotion of the American and British governments to the idea of a second front in Europe. Its Vice Minister is urging that the Far East should be placed upon the same basis of equality with the Western theatre, and that a big offensive be launched there without delay. Australia is expressing a like view. It is declared to be imperative that Japan should not be allowed to consolidate her gains, a prospect dangerous to the United Nations since her expulsion under such conditions might prove costly, if not well nigh impossible. In the light of this argument, it is claimed there must be unified strategy now, in other words that the war be treated as world wide not regional.

To these representations we are replying by pointing to the results of the superb victories won in the battles of the Coral Sea and Midway. Japan's losses stopped a march toward Australia, have denied her progress toward America, and decreased her power in Asia. But China is facing an active invading enemy and Australia continues to feel his menace. To both we are sending help, not, however, as much as they are demanding and certainly require. In the matter of planes, for example, we are supplying Britain and Russia, and our bombers, American manned, dropped their loads on Rumanian oil fields, as reports from Turkey, where four were interned, show, and participated in the sea battle of the Mediterranean where heavy damage was done to the Italian Navy. It is evident to students that the battle front in Europe extends from Murmansk to Gibraltar, from Murmansk to Sebastopol, through the Caucasus to the Near East and from Libya to that region. In other words, there is one connected operation, any part of which broken by the Axis would increase the danger of the United Nations. It is realization of this fact that is responsible for the appearance of our bombers in the Mediterranean area. Should the Allies be driven from that area, the task of Hitler would be simplified. Likewise, cutting of the Murmansk-Moscow route would deprive Russia of the supplies we are dispatching and of which she is in desperate need. China, India and Australia are not only aware of the threat to them of Axis success in Europe and the Near East, but they are struggling against Japan. They point out that a victorious Japan in the Far East would mean her advance to join hands with the Axis. Therefore, their contention that the battle line extends from Murmansk to the Aleutian Islands, and that in their region the enemy must receive equal attention to those in the West.

China and Australia are members of the Pacific Council, which meets in Washington. At the session this week, consideration was given to the situation of those countries. It was pointed out that while the invasion of China has reached a stage of serious importance, still the Japanese are far from complete conquest, and as American production increases we will increase our flow of planes to Chungking. Moreover, our Fleet is driving the enemy back to the China Sea and preventing him from interfering with our shipment of munitions. As to Australia, we feel that the menace to her is dwindling, and as our strength augments, that menace will be definitely removed. In short, we continue to hold that our strategy of large scale attack upon the Axis in Europe is correct, especially as it insures the maintenance of Russia in the war.

The Balkan States have had a taste of our air power, and unquestionably it has made an impression upon Turkey. As far as we know that country will not depart from her attitude of neutrality. Her action in interning the American bombers which landed on her soil is accepted as proper by our State Department and no demand for their release will be made. It is gratifying that the Turkish authorities are treating the crews of the planes with courteous consideration.

The fact that supplies reached Malta and Tobruk is of great importance in this war of positions. We have known for some time that the island stronghold was short of food and other essentials, and that the Libyan fortress required reinforcements. Therefore the two convoys, one moving from Gibraltar, the other from Alexandria. Some freighters were lost and warships damaged, but cooperating with R.A.F. fliers, American bombers sank a 10,000-ton Italian cruiser, fired two Italian battleships and damaged or sunk other warships. This Allied success means that Maltese planes will continue to harass the Axis supply line to Libya and assure reinforcements for the British Army defending Tobruk. Intimately concerned with this neighborhood situation, Egypt will be careful to observe the pro-British attitude which she adopted at the outbreak of the war, and Turkey, as said above, will be impressed with the growing strength of the United Nations. That increase is perhaps best shown by the President's report to Congress on Lend-Lease output. He emphasized that the battle of production is being won, and it is the battle of distribution that is in its critical phase. Of special importance was his new title for this activity—"Lend-Lease and the Peace." This title was accepted as implementing and amplifying the speeches on post war planning made by Vice President Wallace, Under Secretary of State Welles, and Director Perkins of the Board of Economic Warfare. To quote the President, the Lend-Lease program is emerging "as a factor in the combined effort . . . to weave a pattern for peace," and "as the first of our concrete steps in the direction of affirmative post war reconstruction." The President laid down the principle that "the money cost of the war will fall according to the rule of equality of sacrifice as in effort." In other words, we will forgive the debts, especially as, according to the President, there is now reciprocity in deliveries of supplies to our troops and factories. To the end of May, we have transferred $4.5 billions in goods and services to our Allies. The President will have when Congress has confirmed his last estimate of appropriation, more than $20 billions for additional Lend-Lease aid. He expects a large part of this sum will be devoted to post war reconstruction.

Marine Corps—A testimonial luncheon on 16 June 1942 honored Lt. Col. Charles A. Ketcham, USMCR-Ret., who on 1 September, 1942, will retire after serving Marine Corps Headquarters for the past 42 years. He has been legal adviser to the Commandant and the Adjutant and Inspector of the Corps. A testimonial letter, signed by Brig. Gen. E. A. Osterman, Adjutant and Inspector, was read by Col. S. C. Cumming, USMC, executive officer. Colonel Ketcham entered the Government service on 3 June 1898, in the office of the Navy Judge Advocate General and, two years later, was transferred to the Marine Corps. He was appointed chief clerk in 1912 by the Adjutant and Inspector, and five years later became assistant to the Commandant, where he has been since except when on duty as a reserve officer in Haiti and Nicaragua. In 1939 he was placed on the retired list as a lieutenant colonel. A graduate of the National Law School, Colonel Ketcham lives with his family at 32 Columbia Avenue, Hyattsville, Md.

Bureau of Naval Personnel—They may be headline sports figures to the readers of American newspapers, but they soon will be qualified to put away their athletic gear and thoughts, and step into the job of filling gunnery or fire control posts when the summons to "battle stations" rings out. It is not that Rear Adm. Russell Jacobs, USN, Chief of Naval Personnel, has anything against athletics—far from it; but he feels that the men stationed at the Norfolk school for physical instructors should be assigned to courses fitting them for duties at sea as their first requisite.

One group, numbering 30, as fine a set of men as ever graced the glare of publicity—began this workaday part of their Navy careers on Monday, 15 June 1942. It included outstanding stars at baseball, football, boxing, track and other sports. In addition to holding down combat positions at sea, the instructors chosen for gunnery and fire control courses also will keep their limbs active by showing the value of physical fitness to the boys on board. For instance, Comdr. J. J. ("Gene") Tunney, who is the director of the Navy's physical fitness program, believes "the Navy policy is to place these recognized warriors of the gridiron, the prize ring and the baseball diamond into positions where their aggressiveness and leadership can be of value in actual combat. This new development is in accordance with the long range policy of first having all shore establishments and training stations fully manned by instructors so that new recruits would undergo a competently supervised vigorous training before going into the fleet."

Finance Department—The War Department has promulgated six sets of new Army regulations which relate to Finance Department matters. These are in the order of their publication last month:

AR 35-1040, vouchers pertaining to money accounts, superseding regulations of 1 Aug., 1938, including section II, Circular No. 58, 1939; and section IV, Circular No. 198, and section I, Circular No. 201, 1941; AR 35-2440, deductions for maintenance of United States Soldiers' home, rental deductions for dependents, and stoppages against pay of enlisted men, which supersede regulations of 15 June, 1938, including C 1, 1 Dec., 1939, paragraph 2, Circular No. 118, 1940, section IV, Circular No. 29, paragraph 1, section II, Circular No. 75, paragraph 1, Circular No. 153, and section IV, Circular No. 165, 1941.

Also AR 35-2480, payment of enlisted men upon separation from the service, amending regulations of 16 July, 1934, including O 1, 30 Nov., 1938, and paragraph 2, section IV, Circular No. 107, 1942; AR 35-5020, vouchers for travel of military personnel, supersedes regulations of 30 Dec., 1939, including paragraph 3, Circular No. 74, 1930, and section II, Circular No. 88, 1941.

A discussion of fiscal procedure is outlined in AR 35-840, which is pre-dated by regulations of 15 Nov., 1938; while AR 35-6120, payment of transportation accounts, supersedes regulations of 21 March, 1931, including paragraph 3, Circular No. 38, 1941.

Ordnance Department—The War Department, in a review of the nation's ordnance production since 7 Dec., reported this week that the number of contracts producing ordnance items and Army personnel supervising them has more than doubled. Reports reaching Maj. Gen. L. H. Campbell, Jr., Chief of Ordnance, show that production at the end of May was underway on 12,000 prime contracts and 70,000 subcontracts.

During the same period, from 7 Dec., to the end of May, Ordnance district personnel increased from 14,645 to 33,843, with approximately one-half of this personnel on inspection duty. The Chicago District had a total of about 2,000 prime contracts and 16,000 subcontracts during May, to lead all other Ordnance districts.

Quartermaster Corps—A Class of 36 officers who will form the cadres for the Quartermaster supply of new Infantry divisions now in the process of formation, were graduated last week from a 30-day course at the Quartermaster School, Camp Lee, Va.

Capt. R. M. Greene, QMC, in charge of coffee purchases at the Jersey City, N. J., Quartermaster Depot, central purchaser of coffee for the Army, Navy, and Marine Corps, reports that the Army alone would use approximately 145,000,000 pounds of coffee this year. In the period from 1 Jan., to 23 May, the Depot purchased coffee in the value of approximately $30,000,000.

Thirty officer candidates at the Quartermaster School, Camp Lee, Va., last Saturday were commissioned as second lieutenants, several weeks before their course of instruction was due to be completed. The men, who were picked on the basis of previous military experience, will remain at the school for several months to receive further instruction and to assist in teaching future candidate classes. Those who do well in this work, a Camp Lee announcement said, will be promoted. In order to bring them within age-in-grade for service with field units. Lt. Col. Daniel R. Raymond is regimental commander for the unit from which the 30 men were chosen. Enlisted men who received commissions ahead of time are:

The first of a group of officers expected from all the American republics, 1st Lt. Julio I. Rovi of the Panama Policia Nacional and Lt. Guillermo A. Jones of the Costa Rica Army were welcomed early this month at Camp Lee, Va., by Brig. Gen. Guy I. Rowe, commanding general, Quartermaster Replacement Training Center. The officers are to visit the Motor Transport School at the Holabird, Md., Quartermaster Motor Base. 1st Lt. Arthur N. Arenson, former commander of the Fourth Provisional Truck Company at Camp Lee, serves as interpreter for the South American officers.

The interesting account of the induction of Private Dobbin into the Army was told this week in a release from the Office of the Quartermaster General which explains that an Army horse at the time of its acceptance must be 15 or 16 hands high, be anywhere between four and eight years old, be properly shod, and have strong feet. The horse must likewise have his eyes, skin and hoof examined, and must be free from lameness. Muscles, teeth, weight and gait are also carefully checked. If these requirements cannot be met, the Army has no use for the animal.

Then too, the prospective Private Dobbin must pass a "color" test, since the Army does not have use for grays, pintos, appaloosas and light colored horses. They're too visible to the enemy. The horse is saddled before purchase and put through a walking, trotting and galloping test. Any unrideable horse is crossed off the list. The average price paid for each horse is $165.

Field Artillery—Brig. Gen. G. R. Allin, commandant of the Field Artillery School, Ft. Sill, Okla., a veteran of 38 years' service with the Field Artillery, who has reached the statutory retirement age of 62, will be retired on 30 June.

The War Department announced on 17 June that Col. Desmond D. Balmer, FA, War Department General Staff, has been named to succeed General Allin as commandant of the Field Artillery School. He will assume duties on 1 July.

General Allin's son, George R. Allin, Jr., was graduated from West Point last month, and has been commissioned, just as his father was in 1904, a second lieutenant in Field Artillery.

After his return from France where he served with the A. E. F., General Allin attended the Command and General Staff School, the Army War College, and then served on the General Staff for four years. He served as Chief of Staff for the Third Army from 1939 to 1940, when he was made a brigadier general and sent to Ft. Sill as commander of the 18th F. A. Brigade. He was named commandant of the Field Artillery School in January, 1941, and when the 45th Division was ordered to Camp Barkeley, Tex., in March, 1941, he became the ranking officer at Ft. Sill. He later was relieved of this responsibility in order that he might devote his full time to the expanding school. Col. K. S. Perkins became commander of the Ft. Sill post.

Bureau of Aeronautics—Among the many surprises that met the Japanese Navy at Midway Island, not the least was the United States Navy's new torpedo bomber, the Graumann "Avenger." This flying machine, which has been designated as the TBF, was on the Pacific several weeks ahead of schedule. In fact, about four months after the first production model left the plant, this plane was under fire at the Battle of Midway Island. In comparison with existing torpedo bombers, the "Avenger" is said to be 25 per cent faster and to have a much greater range. With a top speed of 270 miles an hour and a range of at least 1,400 miles, a normal load capacity of 2,000 pounds of bombs, or one torpedo, and a ceiling of more than 20,000 feet, this airplane has proved itself a worthy companion to the Douglas "Dauntless" and the Graumann "Wildcat" in the carrier-based squadrons of the Navy.

Addressing Gov. Eugene Talmadge, Chancellor Steadman V. Stanford and an immense audience at the University of Georgia, Athens, Ga., on 18 June 1942, Rear Adm. John H. Towers, USN, Chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, commissioned the Pre-Flight School. He spoke of the calibre of men that must be secured for aviation duty, saying: "They must have spirit and courage and tenacity of purpose. They must have individual skill. They must think for themselves. A good example of that occurred in the Coral Sea action. In one dive-bombing squadron was a newly-arrived pilot who had never seen any action—in fact, he had never dropped a live bomb. His squadron leader led the attack on a Jap carrier, which was in the center of a formation of cruisers and destroyers. At the order 'get the flat top' (slang for carrier) the dive bombers started down in succession. The new pilot, flying the last plane, had a chance to watch results as he awaited his turn. He saw explosion after explosion on the carrier, and as his turn arrived he saw she was already doomed, so he pulled off to the right and dove on a cruiser. His 1000-lb. bomb hit squarely on her stern blowing it wide open and down went the cruiser—quick thinking which paid off.

"By the time your student Naval aviators here finish their course, our new Fleet will be ranging the seas. Challenging that fleet replete with carriers will be a dangerous business. I suspect that Mr. Admiral Yamamoto, who has said he intends to dictate terms of peace at the White House, will have holed up in his lair. Some of you may be fortunate enough to assist in blasting him out and, if he is still in one piece, sending him along to Washington, where he will have ample time to recall to memory the warning given to a group of Japanese high ranking officers some years ago by a British Admiral. He said, 'If you dare war with the United States, at its end you will find the remnants of your empire hanging from the horns of the moon.'"

Cavalry—A most interesting review of the use of cavalry in the Russian army was recently written for the New York Times by Brig. Gen. H. S. Sewell, a brilliant cavalry leader of World War I and now a British newspaper commentator. Russia being a country of wide-open spaces and its people one of partially nomadic tendencies, it is only natural to figure that its armies of millions of men have a fair share of Don Cossacks under arms.

The present number of riders is not known, but in 1939 Russia had 32 horse divisions and two independent brigades. This number now may be doubled or trebled. Germany then had two-and-a-half divisions. France and Italy three divisions each. England four divisions, plus a division of yeomanry, and Poland had 15 brigades.

The weather, the steppes, the nature of the Slavic foemen, and the need to travel fast over their unclaimed country makes cavalry an ideal arm of the service for the Muscovite. Official announcements recently have mentioned the excellent work of the horsemen. Especially has it been effective since the repulse of the German onslaughts last October. It must be remembered that Marshal Semyon Timoshenko is primarily a cavalryman, and it is presumed that he invariably plans his attacks "with his foot in the stirrup" so to speak. General Sewell thinks the Russian General Staff is too realistic to be influenced by such reasons and that they have modernized their mobile forces in the way best suited for fighting in the vast areas with poor communications in which they have to operate. That may all be, but one must realize that nomadic Cossacks cannot be harnessed so easily after centuries of fighting on the backs of their steeds, and if one were admitted to their conclaves one would realize that it is custom that guides their actions, rather than modern influences.

But be that as it may, there seems plenty of work for the cavalry in Russia throughout the year. They can move as fast as ski troops in winter; they can beat any other arm of the service in getting about during the spring freshets; their horses can practically live off the land in the Summer; and when Autumn folds into snow once more their ability to move quickly and surely is a source of strength to the land of mouffiks. Russia seems to be one country which never will give up its cavalry charge to frighten enemies and work its people to veritable fits of frenzy.

Bureau of Supplies and Accounts—At a cost of 55 cents a day for foodstuff, the Navy has put from five to 12 pounds of weight upon thousands of recruits at the Great Lakes (Ill.) Naval Training Station, according to announcement by Rear Adm. W. B. Young, Paymaster General of the Navy and Chief of the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts. He attributes this increase to the trainees' routine of eating wholesome, substantial food and of working and sleeping on a systematic schedule. This is a sample of the Navy menu:

Breakfast—Fruit, cereal and milk, baked pork sausage, country gravy, fried potatoes, hot biscuits and butter, coffee.

Dinner—Julienne soup, baked spiced ham, raisin sauce and fried apples, creamed cauliflower, baked sweet potatoes, bread and butter, pineapple upsidedown cake, coffee.

Supper—Fricassee of veal with egg dumplings, buttered peas, mashed potatoes, combination salad, bread and butter, Boston cream pie, tea.

Army Air Forces—One need not necessarily know a thing about flight training in order to enter as a glider pilot candidate, according to announcement by the War Department. This will open the Army Air Forces glider training program to all applicants between the ages of 18 and 36 who can meet the necessary mental and physical requirements. Elimination of this qualification is expected to admit thousands to the courses which were expanded considerably on 1 June 1942. Candidates without previous flight training will be given five weeks' instruction in light, power-driven planes in a course something like that given primary students in the Civilian Pilot Training program of the CAA. Then they will be given a further fortnight's work making "dead stick" landings as an intermediate step to help them understand glider tactics. Actual floater training will then consist of a two-week course in two-place and larger cargo gliders at elementary and advanced schools. Selected graduates will become 2nd Lieutenants in the AUS, while others will be given staff sergeant ratings with flight pay. All graduates can wear the glider wings insignia. Officers, enlisted men and civilians can take this course, the latter being accepted for enlistment at any Army recruiting station.

"The hardest working planes in the world," is how Maj. Gen. H. J. F. Miller, Commanding General of the Air Service Command, describes his fleet of 100 cargo planes operated by 15 commercial airlines on contract to deliver 1,000,000 pounds of essential priority material each week. The schedule calls for each plane to fly an average of 1,500 miles in 10 hours each day, carrying approximately 3,500 pounds of cargo and additional military personnel on urgent missions.

"Only the utilization of the facilities of the cooperating commercial airliners has made it possible for the Contract Air Cargo Division to fulfill this gruelling schedule during its first 30 days of operation," said General Miller. "By taking advantage of existing airline maintenance, overhaul, communications, operations, and pilot facilities for the prosecution of the war, we have not only solved the problem of transporting by air the essential supplies and equipment from depot to depot and to sub-depot throughout the Western Hemisphere, but we have avoided the costly and delaying necessity of duplicating these facilities within the Army Air Forces."

These planes are being added to constantly, and it is thought that by the end of 1942 there will be about 300 in the service. The 15 civil airlines operating cargo planes for the AAF under the contract system are: American Airlines, Braniff Airways, Chicago & Southern Airlines, Continental Airlines, Delta Airlines, Eastern Airlines, Inland Airlines, Mid-Continental Airlines, National Airlines, Pennsylvania Central Airlines, Trans-Continental Western Air, Inc., United Airlines, Western Airlines, Northeast Airlines and Northwest Airlines. Practically the same routes as flown ordinarily are taken care of by each company. For long trips, pilots are stationed along the routes to enable them to fly in eight-hour shifts. As an example, on the American Airlines contract route from Presque Isle, Me., to Burbank, Calif., one airship makes the trip but it has three changes in crew, at LaGuardia Field, N. Y., Nashville, Tenn., and El Paso, Tex.

Chief of the Contract Air Cargo Division of the Air Service Command is Lt. Col. Robert J. Smith, and the Operations Officer is Maj. M. T. Stallter. Both are experienced in maintenance operations. Men between the ages of 27 and 37 selected by the CAA for civilian pilot training may enlist in the AAF Enlisted Reserves, says the War Department. A certificate signed by a regional superintendent of civilian pilot training, noting the applicant's acceptance for this training, evidence of birth and citizenship and appropriate examination forms prescribed by the recruiting officer must be submitted before the applicant is received. On call to active duty, men so enlisted may be made instructors, glider pilots, service or ferrying pilots.

Capt. Robert Lewis Rizon, AF, USA, who held the rank of flight lieutenant in the Royal Canadian Air Force, was awarded the Air Force Cross on 11 June 1942 by King George VI of Great Britain. He was personally commended by the Canadian Minister for Air and the Chief of the Air Staff. The citation states that, on 11 February 1942, while making a water take-off on an instructional flight, his port engine burst into flames; that he halted it on the surface and applied fire extinguishers which had no effect; that he ordered his men to abandon ship; that all but one of these, who probably was confused, left; that Flight Lieutenant Rizon returned to the blazing ship, stood behind the blazing port engine and over the main fuel tanks; and that he and a member of his crew succeeded in extinguishing the flames. The officer, it was declared, "showed complete disregard of personal safety" and saved the aircraft and some members of the crew.

Army Children Discipline—Praise of the discipline of Army children as compared to that of civilian children, where in a recent study only 11 per cent of a group of parents interviewed claimed good discipline for their children, is contained in an article written by New York World Telegram columnist Irene Delmar from Ft. Knox, Ky. This article states that school authorities at Ft. Knox have no disciplinary problems among the Army children, and explains that Mr. William E. Kingsolver, superintendent of the Ft. Knox Independent Schools, attributes this to the home training the students receive.

"Civilians encourage children to take too much freedom," the school superintendent said; in contrast: "Army children know what discipline means. It has been taught them by the only people who can ever do it properly for anyone—the parents," he added. There are at present 500 students at the Ft. Knox school.

Navy Bond Sale—The Navy Department's war bond sales program slipped into high gear last month when Navy personnel purchased $6,472,257 in series "E" bonds, to bring the grand total to $22,971,317.10.

In a message to personnel, Capt. Gerald A. Eubank, (SC), USNR, recently promoted when he assumed duties as Coordinator, relieving Rear Adm. Charles C. Conard, (SC), USN-Ret., now chairman of the Interdepartmental Committee on War Bonds, said: "May sales showed an increase of 35.77 per cent above April, the number of employees participating in the Payroll Savings Plan showed a healthy increase, and we crashed past the 6 million-dollar mark for the first time."

Navy bond officials said this week that 207,632 Navy employees participated in the payroll savings plan during the month of May, an increase over April of 30,410, or 17.15 per cent.

Outstanding unit in the purchase of bonds was the Philadelphia Navy Yard, whose personnel bought bonds in the amount of $915,825, exceeding by almost $100,000 the largest amount contributed by any one of the nation's Navy Yards up to May, according to Lt. Comdr. W. M. Wakefield, Fourth Naval District war bond officer.

While the President in radio addresses has urged upon the nation that 10 per cent of incomes be allocated for the purchase of bonds, it is interestingly noted that participating Navy personnel during May spent 7.39 per cent of their salaries for bonds.

Chemical Warfare Service—A Chemical Warfare Training Center to occupy 30,000 acres in Etowah and St. Clair counties, Ala., is to be established, the War Department announced this week. Initial accommodations will be for 5,000 men with provision to increase facilities if necessary. After the completion of courses at the Training Center, men will be assigned to duty with various chemical warfare units throughout the Army.

Lt. Col. Milton W. Hankins, CWS, now stationed at Edgewood Arsenal, Md., has been named Assistant Commandant of the Chemical Warfare School at Edgewood Arsenal.

Bureau of Yards and Docks—Rear Adm. Ben Moreell (CEC), USN, Chief of Civil Engineers and Chief of the Bureau of Yards and Docks, received the honorary degree of Doctor of Engineering from his engineering college at Washington University, St. Louis, Mo., on 2 June 1942. Dr. George Throop, Chancellor of the University, conferred the degree after Dean A. S. Langsdorf, Dean of the College of Engineering, read this citation:

"Mr. Chancellor, I have the honor to present Rear Adm. Ben Moreell, Chief of the Bureau of Yards and Docks and Chief of Civil Engineers in the United States Navy, distinguished graduate of the School of Engineering of Washington University.

"Entering the Navy at the time of the first World War with the rank of Junior Lieutenant, he achieved the unusual record of advancing through all the grades within the short span of 20 years. He has displayed executive ability of the highest order in administering the affairs of the Department of Public Works in the Azores, in Haiti, at the Puget Sound Navy Yard, and in the Bureau of Yards and Docks at Navy headquarters. And with this ability there is joined in him productive scholarship, a combination that is rare indeed. His book on 'Standards of Design for Concrete' remains a classic in its field. His contributions to technical literature have won for him election to the presidency of the American Concrete Institute and the American Society of Military Engineers.

"The School of Engineering takes just pride in the achievements of this distinguished alumnus, and in the name of the faculty it is my privilege to present him as worthy of the honorary degree of Doctor of Engineering."

Transportation Service—Establishment by the Army on 15 June of a Consolidating Station at Chicago, Ill., first of its kind, is expected to result in an important saving of time, money, and freight cars in the transportation of small but essential Army shipments. The name of the commanding officer is not yet available.

The new station, which will be operated by the Traffic Control Division, Transportation Service, will convert less-than-carload westbound shipments into solid carloads, while all means of transport such as truck, railroad, express, and parcel post will be utilized when these less-than-carload shipments are within range of an overnight haul of Chicago.

At the same time it is pointed out that creation of the consolidating station will better insure the Army's control over the routes over which war materiel is shipped. Thus, Army officials will be able to divert a shipment at any time it may become necessary.

Signal Corps—Students at the Signal Corps radio school, Camp Crowder, Mo., are putting their instruction to practical use in the installation of more than 200 loud speakers to cover the entire huge Signal Corps Replacement Center at Camp Crowder.

Two Signal Corps privates, Jeffrey Lynn and William Holden, both of whom were movie actors prior to induction into service, participated this week in a radio broadcast entitled "Soldiers of God," over the coast-to-coast Blue Network. The privates acted as narrators for the program, a tribute to Army chaplains, and were detailed to this assignment from their regular duties in the Signal Corps, where they are in training at the Photographic School.

Medical Corps—The War Department this week told the amazing story of Dr. Gordon S. Seagrave, Rangoon-born American Baptist Missionary in Burma, who put aside his busy civilian doctoring with the arrival of Chinese troops opposite Thailand and Indo-China, and who later offered his services and those of his staff to Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, Chief of Staff for Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek and commander of the Chinese forces in Burma.

And in telling the story of this doctor who in 24 hours, resting only 90 minutes, took care of 150 casualties on the Toungoo front, the War Department reported how Col. Robert P. Williams, MC, chief surgeon for the American forces in the China-India-Burma theatre and attached to General Stilwell's command, assisted the gallant doctor. Even while he was busy transferring 850 patients from the bombed city of Mandalay in a 40-truck convoy to Lashio, 200 miles north, Colonel Williams was able to dispatch Capt. Donald M. O'Hara, DC, to the assistance of Dr. Seagrave. The fact that he was a dentist did not, of course, prevent Captain O'Hara from probing patients for bullets and pieces of shrapnel. There was too much jaw and face work among the Chinese wounded.

One week later, Colonel Williams dispatched Capt. John Grindlay to aid Dr. Seagrave, while later the medical commander, himself, and General Robert S. Lim, a physician who is head of the Chinese Red Cross and Inspector General, Medical Services, Chinese Army, arrived to lend assistance.

It is believed Dr. Seagrave and his band of nurses have made their way to India, forced to evacuate by the advancing enemy.

Dr. Charles A. Marrin, visiting ophthalmologist and director of eye surgery at Lincoln Hospital, N. Y., has been commissioned a major in the Medical Corps of the Army Air Forces, and will be stationed at Barksdale Field, La.

Col. Frank W. Weed, MC, formerly First Army Surgeon, assumed command of the Letterman General Hospital, Presidio of San Francisco, Calif., on 12 June, relieving Brig. Gen. Wallace DeWitt, who having reached the age of 64 will be retired on 30 June.

In a tribute to General DeWitt, the Fog Horn, newspaper publication at Letterman said: "The old adage of 'A job worth doing is worth doing well' could easily apply to the activities of Brigadier General Wallace DeWitt while at Letterman, and pertains to every phase of the hospital here. No problem has been too large and no problem has been disregarded because of its small size; problems of every nature have been handled expeditiously."

Army Nurse Corps—The following nurses have been promoted this month to the grade of chief nurse: Estella Baylor, Louella Bluns, Beatrice Bosley, Sara Brogan, Helen A. Chupka, Keziah Hibbard, Alice Johnson, Georgia Lessley, Iva Lindstrom, Mary M. Ludvico, Beryha H. Luker, Frances Reid, Berma Sheffoe, Ella V. Shorney, and Ruth Tregoe.

Inspector General's Department—The War Department has published new regulations outlining the composition and duties of the Inspector General's Department. These regulations supersede AR 20-5, 16 Aug., 1935, including section I, Circular No. 40, War Department, 1941.

Armored Force—With his men of the Sixth Armored Division at Camp Chaffee, Ark., looking on, Brig. Gen. William H. H. Morris, Jr., its commander, was formally elevated to the rank of a major general by Brig. Gen. Carlos Brewer, commander of a combat command, and Col. Basil G. Thayer, chief of staff. This solemn duty was performed while Maj. J. S. Garfield administered the oath in the divisional amphitheatre, after which members of the general and special staff were introduced to the division. Their commander complimented men of the camp on their progress in training, saying there will be many promotions in the early future as 500 men would be taken out to form a cadre for new Armored divisions. "I am confident," he said, "that whether we fight on the plains of France, the steppes of Russia, the sands of Libya or the desert of Australia, we will see victory. When the division is completely trained, I shall be proud to lead it into combat and kick the pants off Mr. Hitler and Mr. Togo."

Recent figures give Trains Headquarters Company of the 8th Armored Division at Ft. Knox, Ky., a rating of 97 per cent of its members purchasing War Bonds and Stamps. This is very close to the lead—if not really the banner bearer—of all company organizations. Top regiment at Ft. Knox is the 3rd Student Regiment of the Armored Force "blitz" college. Ten per cent of the entire post personnel has already subscribed for War Bonds.

Civilians working at the Ft. Knox Post Ordnance Shops have been buying bonds and stamps, then cancelling them, and sending these cancelled ones to President Roosevelt. They have turned in $135.50 so far to the Government. Maj. Gen. Daniel Voorhis, commander of the Fifth Corps Area, with headquarters at Ft. Hayes, Ohio, wrote: "This unique contribution is another expression of the loyal and patriotic spirit which makes America invincible." Col. N. B. Briscoe, Post Commander of Ft. Knox, forwarded his compliments to civilian employees, and wrote: "With this typical American spirit prevalent throughout our land, we cannot fail" when he forwarded one of the donations. The men in the shops are so busy they have no time to look after their purchases, so they have a committee consisting of Bernard E. Vonderhaar, Miss Jean Wallace and Manuel J. Gibbs that gathers the funds, buys the stamps and bonds, and forwards them to Washington, D. C.

Maj. Gen. Henry W. Baird, who commanded the 4th Armored Division at Pine Camp, N. Y., since its activation on 15 April 1941, has been assigned to Ft. Knox, Ky., and his command at Pine Camp has been assumed by Brig. Gen. John S. Wood, who lately commanded the 5th Armored Division, Camp Cooke, Calif. General Baird came up from the ranks in the Army. He was born on Kent Island, Md., 13 August 1881 and enlisted 1 September 1904. He is one of the pioneers of Army mechanization.

Lt. Col. Victor W. B. Wales, Assistant Train Commander of the 4th Armored Division, Piney Point, N. Y., has assumed new duties at the Headquarters of the Army Ground Forces in the War College, Washington, D. C. Lt. Col. Walter A. Bigby, commander of that Division's Train Command, has just completed a course at the Quartermaster Depot, Baltimore, Md., and has returned to his station.

A board of 14 officers has been designated to pass upon all matters pertaining to officer candidates for the Armored Force Officer Candidate School, Ft. Knox, Ky. Members of the board are: Lieutenant Colonels Charles H. Calais and Albert S. J. Stovall, Jr., Maj. Paul A. Chalmers, Captains Richard M. Norris, Ernest H. Sprinkle, Raymond G. Markham, Paul J. Solis and Raymond Riley, First Lieutenants C. M. Jones and Howard L. Weeks and Second Lieutenants Roger J. Erwin, William Vockery, Joseph K. Jones and Robert S. Everett.

Bureau of Medicine and Surgery—By 1 September 1942 the United States Navy expects to occupy its new hospital unit on what was the St. Albans Golf Club course in Queens borough, New York City. This new hospital will replace the Naval Hospital at 263 Flushing Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., and will include from 75 to 100 buildings for general surgical and psychiatric treatment. Its normal capacity can be doubled in an emergency, although what its usual capacity is cannot be told. The Officer-in-Charge of construction is Lt. Homer F. Pfeiffer of the Navy's Civil Engineering Corps, a former Connecticut architect and 1927 winner of the Prix de Rome.

Chaplains—Fourth recipient of the American War Mothers' Award is Ch. Paul H. Maurer, of the Armored Force Replacement Training Center, Ft. Knox, Ky. Others who have received this medal in the past four years are President Roosevelt, the Mayor of Vincennes, Ind., and the Governor of Indiana.

Corps of Engineers—The War Department announced Thursday that the Engineer Board at Ft. Belvoir, under the direction of the Chief of Engineers, and assisted by various interested governmental agencies, has prepared standard specifications for essential blackout equipment and requirements, copies of which have been distributed to all Defense Commanders and Corps Area Commanders. During Blackouts, are being distributed, with the expectation that the Office of Civilian Defense will later publish and distribute the specifications in areas to which they will be applied.

In order to meet a shortage of skilled, sewage-treatment plant operators required to run Army plants, the Corps of Engineers has planned a school of short courses for men now engaged in the operation of such facilities, with the first course scheduled to begin next week at the Georgia School of Technology, Atlanta, Ga. The Repairs and Utilities Branch has arranged the courses, which are expected to be given in each of the Corps Areas before the school is terminated.

The War Department points out that disposal of sewage at a camp presents a serious health problem, which is not made easier by the fact that camps have a continually changing population. It was explained further that in some instances plans were placed in operation prior to completion to care for the influx of troops to a certain installation.

A new Engineer District, the Kingsport, Tenn., District, was established last week and Maj. Elvin R. Gates, CE, was named District Engineer.

These officers have been relieved of additional duty as follows: Col. George Mayo, additional unit instructor, Engineer Headquarters, railway; Col. Lewis T. Ross, unit instructor, Engineer Headquarters, railway; Lt. Col. Herbert D. Vogel, 730th Engineer Battalion, and Lt. Col. Albert H. Burton, unit instructor, Engineer Headquarters, railway.

Lt. Col. Clarence D. Barker, (CA), CE, has been assigned to the Construction Division, Office, Chief of Engineers.

Warning that "this is no time for fatuous optimism, or light-hearted conclusions to the effect that the tide has turned," Maj. Gen. Eugene Reybold, Chief of Engineers, nevertheless forcefully assured that we will hold the "vital bases from which our ultimate offensives will be launched."

Speaking at a meeting of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce meeting in Dallas, Tex., General Reybold said: "We have held, and will continue to hold Hawaii, Midway, Australia, and the Aleutians. Above all," he added, "we—and by we I mean the forces of the United Nations—continue to hold the bastion of England, and even now the ultimate air offensive, based on that Island, is taking shape."

Maj. John J. McEwan has been ordered to duty in the Office of the Chief of Engineers, Services of Supply, on 28 June. Major McEwan is a former West Point football star and coach. He was graduated from West Point in 1917, as a second lieutenant of Infantry and served through the World War. He resigned from the Army in December, 1925, in the grade of captain, having served from 1919 to 1923 as football coach at the Military Academy. After resigning from the Army he coached football at Oregon University and at Holy Cross.

Glider Service—Almost incredible gains in the handling of gliders has been demonstrated lately at Wright Field, Dayton, O., by the Army Air Forces Materiel Center, according to the War Department announcement. They have perfected a plan whereby an airplane, traveling at more than 100 miles per hour, can pick gliders from the ground. High AAF officers who saw and demonstrated these flights say they were highly successful and indicated the system may be used to hurry up the training program for glider pilots which has been announced by the AAF.

Under this new pick-up system, gliders used in training can be plucked from the ground by a plane in flight and towed until they gain sufficient altitude to be released by the glider pilot. The airplane then circles and makes another pick-up of a waiting glider. Using this system, gliders can be snatched up by an airplane at a rate of one each three minutes. This system will eliminate the need for a plane to take off each time a glider is taken aloft. The glider used in this instance was an XTG-3 and the pick-ups were made by a Stinson light monoplane.

The system works as follows: The glider is put about 200 feet back of two up-rights between which a tow-line is placed. Inside the cabin of the plane is a revolving reel, equipped with a built-in brake which carries a tow-line and the grapple-hook. As the tow plane approaches the pick-up ground station, the pilot levels off pretty much as though he were going to land, except that his speed is from 95 to 120 mph. He lowers the pick-up arm and the hook catches the suspended tow-line. At the moment of contact, with the plane from 12 to 14 feet from the ground, the cable reel inside the plane is permitted to spin freely to pay out more tow-cable to cushion the initial load imposed by the dead-weight of the glider on the ground. Some of the shock is taken up by the tow-line itself, which is made of nylon to give maximum strength with great resilience. Gradually the reel-brake is applied, the glider accelerates smoothly, and when the speeding tow-plane has levelled off, the glider is air-borne. Then the brake is fully locked and the glider is in full tow. When sufficient height has been reached the glider pilot cuts himself loose. If at any time while the glider is in tow the acceleration exceed 1 G, an automatic shock absorber goes into action.

Experiments are continuing at Wright Field, looking to the time when large commercial freight and passenger glider trains can be plucked from the ground.

At the controls of the glider during the first non-stop pick-up was Col. F. R. Dent, AC, Chief of the Experimental Glider Unit at Wright Field. Then several young flying officers, among whom was 2nd Lt. Chester H. Decker, AC, holder of the Golden "C" Certificate of the Federation Aeronautique Internationale, demonstrated their abilities.

Test Credit Abolition

The War Department announced on 1 June that its first test of denying credit to all enlisted men, except those of the three highest pay grades, will go into effect 1 August at Ft. Bragg, N. C. Under the plan, enlisted men of the four lowest pay grades will be put on a "cash on the barrel head" basis at the post exchanges, theaters, barber shops, pool tables, tailor shops, cobbler shops, and other agencies set up at army posts for their convenience. The full text of the War Department's announcement follows:

"The Army's experiment to determine whether enlisted men can be put on a pay-as-you-go basis in their personal purchases at military stations will receive a three months' trial at Ft. Bragg, N. C., the War Department announced today.

"Under the present easy-going 'charge it' system many soldiers find on every payday that they have drifted into a cumulative debt that consumes a large share of their monthly pay, leaving them with the prospect of worrying through another month on credit and borrowings.

"Besides relieving the individual of recurrent financial worries which impair his efficiency, the new system is calculated to inculcate habits of thrift and prudence which will enhance his dignity as a soldier and serve him well throughout his life.

"But beyond the benefit it confers on the individual soldier, the new plan makes for a substantial contribution to Army efficiency by eliminating a large volume of administrative paper work and thereby freeing the time of military commanders for strictly military duties. The War Department is confident that soldiers will accept the new system in the same cooperative spirit in which civilians have accepted the national policy of reducing credit buying.

"The test at Ft. Bragg will begin on 1 August 1942, thus permitting each soldier to receive at least one full month's pay under The Pay Readjustment Act before the test is put into effect.

"In order to make the transition from the credit system without undue hardship, a partial payment will be made to the Ft. Bragg personnel in the middle of the first month of the test.

"During the experimental period at Ft. Bragg, all purchases from the Post Exchange, theatre, company-owned activities such as barber shops, pool tables, tailor shops, etc., and concessions of a similar nature, will be for cash or coupons bought and paid for in advance. The only enlisted men exempt from this rule are non-commissioned officers of the first three grades, the majority of whom are married and have families.

"For the duration of the test, the sale of Post Exchange coupon books at a discount of five per cent has been authorized. Army Motion Picture Coupon books will continue to be sold at a discount of approximately 30 per cent as has been the practice for a number of years. The sale of these will be handled by post theatres and exchanges, but not by organization commanders as heretofore. Army Motion Picture coupon books are valid at any Army theatre in the United States and Alaska, whereas exchange coupons are valid only at the station of purchase but are redeemable in cash if the purchaser is transferred to another station.

"Simultaneously with the experiment at Ft. Bragg, an intensive campaign will be launched to reduce the amount of credit extended on company collection sheets at all other military posts, camps, stations and organizations, including overseas commands. The objective is a reduction of at least 50 per cent by the last month of the test.

"If the tryout at Ft. Bragg proves successful, company collection sheets will be discontinued throughout the Army, and charge accounts for enlisted men will be confined to men of the first three grades. This would mean that unit commanders would be relieved of a heavy non-military burden of record-keeping and correspondence. Collection sheets involve a great accumulation of administrative detail, particularly when men are transferred from one unit to another.

"All enlisted men will be notified of the impending test, and of the vital benefits to the Army and the individual soldier that its success would bring."

Work in Defense Industries

The Senate this week approved a bill, H. R. 6634, which permits former members of the armed forces who do not have birth certificates to use honorable discharge papers as evidence of citizenship for employment in defense industries.

Army to Use 24-Hour Clock

The War Department announced on Thursday that the official time system for the Army in all official messages, dispatches, orders, and reports, beginning 1 July, at 4 A. M., Greenwich Civil Time—12:00 midnight, E. W. T., 30 June—will be the 24-hour clock system.

In explanation of this order, the War Department release stated:

"Under the 24-hour clock system, time is expressed in a group of four digits, running from 0000 to 2400, representing the 24 hours from midnight to midnight. The first two figures of the four-digit serial indicate the hours after midnight and the remaining two figures indicate the minutes past the hour. Where the hour can be expressed by a single digit, it will be preceded by zero, for example, 0625 for 6:25 A. M. Twelve noon would be expressed 1200, and 2:00 P. M. would be expressed 1400.

"The date may be expressed in combination with the hour in one of two ways. For the current month the day may be indicated by preceding the four-figure time group with a two figure date group, as 080600—the eight day of the month, time, 6:00 A. M. The time, day, month and year may be expressed as 2230 June 15, 1942, the time, in this case being 10:30 P. M.

"Greenwich Civil Time will be used in the heading and text of all messages and orders from the War Department and in all messages and reports to the Department, communications with the Navy and with the armed forces of associated nations. Greenwich Time will also be used between headquarters not having a common local time. All Greenwich Civil Time readings will be designated by the letter Z affixed at the end of the time group reading. For example, 190225Z, indicates 2:25 A. M. on the 19th day of the current month, Greenwich Civil Time."

Clothing Renovation Ordered

The War Department has directed that whenever practicable, clothing requiring renovation or repair will be renovated or repaired and returned to the original wearer.

Heads Incentive Division

Rear Adm. Clark H. Woodward, USN-Ret., has been appointed to head the Incentive Division, just created, which will maintain liaison with each of the bureaus and offices in the Navy Department and with like offices in the War Department and the Maritime Commission to accelerate production of war materials.

The present procedure of the Navy Board of Production Awards, of which Rear Adm. Henry A. Wiley, USN-Ret., is Chairman, may be altered but the new set-up will not abolish the office of Production Awards.

FUMIGATE TO CONTROL VERMIN AND INSECT PESTS

FUMIGATION by experienced operators is the surest, easiest way to get rid of obnoxious insects and vermin.

Hydrocyanic Acid Gas is recognized as an ideal and most efficient fumigant by eminent authorities.

ZYKLON DISCIDS (wood pulp discs impregnated with HCN) are the modern, clean fumigant. The HCN is evolved spontaneously as the disc is opened and as the discoids are exposed to air. The gas easily penetrates infested bedding and clothing. Equally effective for fumigating dry food-stuffs to control insect infestation. The gas is readily released from fumigated materials upon sufficient aeration.

"Hydrocyanic acid gas is one of the most effective, useful and popular fumigants known for destroying insects in structures occupied by man." U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Farmers' Bulletin No. 1679, April, 1932

"Hydrocyanic acid gas is our nearest approach to the ideal fumigant... The simplicity of use of HCN discoids and Zyklon is quite apparent. One merely takes his fumigant, in cans of convenient size, into the building, opens them, spreads the contents and goes out, closing the door behind him. After fumigation, residue is swept up and with the empty cans thrown into the trash. What could be simpler?" Public Health Reports, Vol. 46, No. 18, May 1, 1931

Navy Selection Laws

said Mr. Vinson, "you are liable to have errors."

During the hearings both Chairman Vinson and Rear Adm. Randall Jacobs, Chief of Naval Personnel, expressed approval of a bill recently introduced by Rep. Cole, of N. Y., which would give submarine officers the same additional pay—50 per cent—as is now given flying officers. Admiral Jacobs stated that the bill was now being studied in the Department.

During his testimony, Admiral Jacobs revealed that the principle of selection was to be retained for the temporary promotions, but that instead of statutory boards, simple committees of officers would pass on recommendations, and a majority of votes would be sufficient to promote.

Admiral Jacobs also discussed the future of officers who would be held in their temporary ranks during the war. He stated:

"It is realized that there are officers at the top of the grades of lieutenant commander, commander, and captain who, under present law, will be eligible for consideration for permanent promotion to higher rank during the early part of the fiscal year 1943. These officers may be temporarily promoted under this bill. If the war should continue for four or five years, however, they may be at a disadvantage from the standpoint of age, when considered for a permanent rank at the termination of the war. As an example, a permanent commander now at the age of 48 or 49, may, after four or five years creditable service in the temporary rank of captain, be considered too old for selection in the permanent grade of captain when such determination is made after the war.

"While this situation is admittedly undesirable, it is not considered that the present bill should include remedial measures for this particular group. Consideration should be given towards rectifying this and similar situations when promotion laws are re-enacted after the termination of hostilities."

Text of the House Committee's report on H. R. 7090 follows:

The Committee on Naval Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 7160) to provide for the better administration of officer personnel of the Navy during the existing war, and for other purposes, having considered the same, report favorably thereon with amendments and recommend that the bill as amended do pass.

The amendments are as follows:

Page 2, line 2, after the word "That" insert the words "in the discretion of the Secretary of the Navy."

Page 2, line 20, change the period at the end to a colon and add the following proviso:

And provided further, That nothing in this Act shall preclude the honorable discharge of any officer in accordance with section 12 (g) of the Act approved 23 June 1938 (34 U. S. C. 404 (g)), where such officer has heretofore been named in the approved report of a selection board.

Page 2, strike out section 2 beginning with line 21, and insert in lieu thereof the following:

The number of rear admirals on the active list of the line entitled to the pay and allowances provided by law for rear admirals of the upper half, exclusive of those carried as additional numbers in such grade, shall be one-half of the number of permanent and temporary officers of the line in that grade: Provided, That each officer of the Staff Corps now or hereafter serving in the rank of rear admiral shall be entitled to receive the pay and allowances provided by law for rear admirals of the upper half when a line officer who was his junior in the rank from which the staff officer concerned was advanced becomes entitled to such pay and allowances pursuant to the foregoing but not earlier than the date upon which the staff officer is appointed to the rank of rear admiral: Provided further, That nothing contained herein shall operate to suspend the provisions of Section 18 of the Act of 10 June 1926 (44 Stat. 724), with respect to staff officers who on the date of this Act have been recommended for advancement to the rank of rear admiral by the approved report of a selection board: Provided further, That an officer carried as an additional number in the grade or rank of rear admiral shall become entitled to the pay and allowances provided for rear admirals of the upper half from the same date as the officer next junior to him: Provided further, That the foregoing shall be exclusive of officers entitled to such pay and allowances solely by reason of their serving in the rank of admiral or vice admiral, or as chief of bureau, judge advocate general of the Navy, or director of budget and reports: And provided further, That no officer who has or may become entitled to the pay and allowances of a rear admiral of the upper half shall suffer a reduction of his pay and allowances solely by reason of the fact that the number of rear admirals may for any reason be reduced.

Page 5, line 4, after the word "admiral" insert the words "and any officer of the Regular Marine Corps below the rank of lieutenant general."

Amend the title to read as follows: A bill to provide for the better administration of officer personnel of the Navy and Marine Corps during the existing war, and for other purposes.

The purpose of this bill is to suspend existing provisions of law relating to the permanent promotion of all officers of the Navy and Marine Corps, and the involuntary retirement of such officers by reason of failure of selection. In addition, the bill amends other features of present laws in order that they may be better and more efficiently administered.

Experience gained under present operating conditions has demonstrated that it is impractical and inadvisable, during the present war, to continue to administer Navy officer personnel laws as they relate to permanent promotions and involuntary retirements or discharges.

During normal peacetime the selection boards are composed of officers serving at sea in the various type forces, as well as those employed on shore. The committee is of the opinion that it is inadvisable to withdraw such officers from their important assignments during war in order to permit them sitting as members of selection boards. Operating conditions during wartime, with attendant casualties, make it impossible to determine the actual number of commissioned officers upon which a correct legal distribution of line officers in the several grades can be made, as required by existing law. Furthermore, due to the uncertain status (missing, captured, dead, etc.) of officers, it is equally impossible to determine the dates upon which vacancies in grades may occur.

The proposed legislation provides, in brief, for the suspension of laws governing permanent promotions in the Navy and Marine Corps during the continuance of the existing war and until 30 June of the fiscal year following that in which such war is terminated. It preserves in general the right of permanent promotion to officers already selected for such promotion and to those who have otherwise become eligible for promotion or advancement. The only exception to this would be in the case of an officer who, since becoming eligible for promotion, has committed himself in such a manner as to indicate that he should not be advanced in rank. The bill contains appropriate provisions to insure that the proper number of officers of the rank of rear admiral become entitled to the pay of the upper half.

It also retains the eligibility of staff officers, Reserve aviators, and Naval Reserve Officers' Training Corps graduates to appointments and transfers to the Regular Navy. In certain cases, where necessary, the precedence of officers under the temporary selection procedure is provided for and clarified. There is a special provision preserving promotion rights where under war conditions the loss of records and unavailability of officers to execute formal papers is probable.

The temporary promotion law (Public Law 188, 77th Cong.), will be affected by the enactment of the proposed bill and it is amended so as to require temporary promotion by selection only. The temporary promotion law is also extended in time so as to parallel the proposed bill in that respect.

The committee are advised that the selective system envisioned in connection with the administration of this bill does not contemplate the use of regularly constituted statutory boards as provided in existing law. It is felt, however, that some form of selection is necessary in order that personnel whose records indicate a high degree of ability will receive first consideration. It is believed that the second amendment to Public Law 188 (77th Cong.), contained in section 7, will accomplish this purpose.

The following is an analysis of the bill by sections as amended:

Sec. 1. This section provides for—

(a) Suspension of present requirements that periodical computations be made to determine the legally allowable number of officers in each of the commissioned grades of the line of the Navy and Marine Corps.

(b) Suspension of all permanent promotions of line, staff, and warrant officers, whether due by seniority or the creation of vacancies, except for those already selected and those who have become eligible for promotion.

(c) Suspension of the provisions of existing law requiring the involuntary retirement or honorable discharge of officers by reason of failure of selection.

(d) Permanent promotion, in the discretion of the Secretary of the Navy, of an officer who on the date of the approval of this act has been recommended for permanent promotion or advancement by the approved report of a selection board, or who has become due for permanent promotion or advancement by length of service or otherwise to a nonselection grade or rank (first proviso). Further provision is incorporated to permit the promotion of those officers without recourse to naval examining board or boards of medical examiners in instances where service conditions may not permit the officer concerned to appear before the boards.

The committee inserted in the first line of the first proviso after the word "That" (p. 2, line 2) the words "in the discretion of the Secretary of the Navy." This was done in order to allow the Secretary of the Navy to withhold the permanent promotion of any officer, who, since becoming eligible for promotion, has committed himself in such a manner as to indicate he should not be advanced in rank.

The second proviso would fix, as final and conclusive, the promotion date of each officer on the list who is eligible for promotion in due course, the exact date of vacancy being unknown since it has been impossible to determine definitely the date of death in action of certain officers.

The committee added a third proviso to this section which will permit effecting the discharge, in accordance with present law, of one lieutenant whose professional record, in the opinion of a selection board, indicates an unsatisfactory performance of duty in his present grade and further indicates that he could not satisfactorily perform the duties of a higher grade.

Sec. 2. This section provides that advancements to the pay status of rear admirals of the upper half will not be suspended. In the absence of such provision, some officers might be denied the opportunity which now exists for entrance to the upper half pay status. As amended by the committee this right will be preserved equally to officers of the staff corps and the line.

Sec. 3. This section does not relate to the present permanent promotion law. It stipulates, however, that no Reserve officer of a staff corps employed on active duty shall, because of wartime service conditions, be denied the opportunity of appointment to the Regular Navy if within the statutory age limits when assigned to active duty. As an example, an officer of the Medical Corps, Reserve on active duty, may be less than 32 years of age when assigned active duty; his wartime duty assignment may be such that he will not have opportunity to compete in the examinations for appointment to the Regular Navy until he has passed the statutory age limit. This section will continue his eligibility until he can compete in examination.

Sec. 4. This section preserves the rights of Reserve aviators and graduates of the Naval Reserve Officers' Training Corps who are now eligible by law for transfer to the Regular Navy. Under the present law these officers must, on June 30 of the calendar year in which commissioned in the Regular Navy (or Marine Corps), be less than 26 years of age and have completed certain designated periods of service. In many of these instances wartime assignments prevent the completion of required physical examinations and other documentary evidence prior to reaching the maximum age limit. Accordingly, it is deemed equitable to continue the eligibility of these officers beyond the 26-year age limit, provided they were less than 25 years of age upon the date of reporting for active duty.

This section also contains a new principle for establishing the order of precedence of these officers upon transfer. Under existing law, many of them are not given credit for precedence or promotion for some portions of their active duty as Reserve officers. The proviso of section 4 corrects this condition. If this bill is enacted into law, each officer will be assigned precedence exactly as if he had been appointed in the Regular Navy upon the date he reported for active duty in his rank, and his precedence will be determined in the same manner as that of Naval Academy graduates upon being commissioned.

Sec. 5. Under existing law, personnel temporarily appointed or promoted in grade are not entitled to the pay of the grade to which appointed or promoted prior to the date of execution of an oath of office. In many instances, officers so appointed or promoted have been lost in action, presumably after having executed the oath of office form, and the form has been lost with the ship. Thus, the Navy Department is without positive knowledge that these officers were, in fact, serving in the higher grade when lost in action. Therefore, their dependents are denied the death benefits which would be based on the higher grade. This section will correct this situation and at the same time remove the necessity for useless paper work and much correspondence.

Sec. 6. In accordance with existing law an officer temporarily promoted to rear admiral or major general must, as a general rule, when retired, be retired in his permanent rank with the retired pay of that rank. With the suspension of permanent promotions, and if the present war continues for any great length of time, it is possible that some officers may attain the age of 64 years while temporarily serving as rear admirals or major generals. This section grants to such officers the same retirement benefits now accruing to other temporary rear admirals or major generals who may be retired by reason of physical disability.

Sec. 7. This section amends the present temporary promotion law to the extent that it would require temporary promotion by selection. It also extends the time during which temporary commissions may be continued. The time limit provided in this section parallels the period during which permanent promotion laws would be suspended.

Sec. 8. This section contains the usual savings clause and limits the date for the termination of the suspension of permanent promotions to 30 June, of the fiscal year following that in which the present war shall end. Sufficient time is provided in which to make necessary adjustments prior to resumption of permanent law.

The committee is convinced that enactment of this bill will materially assist the Navy Department in administering its officer personnel, and thereby contribute to the successful prosecution of the war effort.

The committee unanimously recommends enactment of the bill H. R. 7160 as amended.

Civilian Housing Policy

By order of the Secretary of War, Maj. Gen. J. A. Ulloa, The Adjutant General, on 13 June 1942 issued an order giving civilian employees priority ratings in housing projects. The ruling reads:

"1. Attention is invited to Immediate Action letter from this Office AG 600.12 (4-22-42) MO-M, dated 29 April 1942, subject: 'Civilian War Housing Occupancy Policy,' which requires that as vacancies occur in existing civilian war housing projects, commanding officers will give priority of occupancy to key civilian employees of their posts. The attention of this office has been called to the fact that in numerous instances, commanding officers are broadly and loosely interpreting this policy. Furthermore, it has been reported that certain post commanders are evicting civilian personnel employed at their posts from housing projects under their direction, and assigning the compulsory-vacated dwellings to military personnel.

"2. In accordance with the policy which requires that family housing is to be procured only for indispensable War Department civilian personnel, it is directed that commanding officers will certify key civilian employees for priority of occupancy in existing housing as well as in housing to be constructed. For purposes of efficient station administration, military personnel will be housed in civilian war housing projects only when dwelling units are not required by essential civilian employees."

At the brilliant reception which culminated the Washington visit of His Majesty, King George II of Greece, given by the Greek Minister and Madame Diamantopoulos Monday night, among the guests glimpsed were Mr. Knox, the Secretary of the Navy, the Chief of Staff of the Army, General Marshall, and Mrs. Marshall, the Commandant of the Marine Corps, Lt. Gen. Thomas Holcomb, and Mrs. Holcomb; the Commandant of the Navy Yard, Rear Adm. Pettengill, and Mrs. Pettengill, Rear Adm. and Mrs. John H. Some five hundred and more guests were welcomed at the handsome legation in Massachusetts Ave., but because it is war-times, the reception was dubbed unofficial, and "black tie" was indicated.

Lt. Gen. and Mrs. Holcomb were among those entertaining before the levee for the King of the Hellenes, having at their hospitable table Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Philip Torrey, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Julien Smith, who came up from Quantico; also Col. and Mrs. Roy Robinson, and Col. and Mrs. Walter Wachtler, whom they had invited to hear the concert of the Marine Band that evening.

by Col. R. Ernest Dupuy. Claiming the interest of all were Lt. Mary Lohr, of the Army Nurse Corps, recently returned from Bataan, and Mrs. James Doolittle, wife of Brig. Gen. Doolittle, the Tokyo raider.

Speakers at the luncheon were Col. J. A. Verkuy of the Royal Netherlands East Indies Army and Col. Frederick G. Sutton, head of the Australian Mission, who warned against what he termed "Chatterbugs," stating that military secrets were leaking out from too much talking, and he said Australian women had been silenced, and hoped the women of this country would be too, but admitted that men as well as women talked. One Navy woman pertinently remarked, sotto voce, that if the men did not tell their wives, wives in turn could have nothing to tell.

Mrs. King, wife of the Chief of Naval Operations, Admiral Ernest J. King, went to Annapolis the middle of the week for a brief visit. Their daughter, Miss Mildred King and her fiancé, Capt. James McReynolds, were the guests of honor at a party Sunday evening given by Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Beach for their daughter, Bettie, school mate of Miss King. Funeral services were held on Saturday, 13 June, at Arlington National Cemetery for Lt. Col. Kenney J. Hampton, USA-Ret., who died on 11 June, at the Walter Reed General Hospital, Washington, D. C. Colonel Hampton is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ada B. Hampton, 1313 Geranium Street, Washington, D. C., and a son Mr. Kenney J. Hampton, Jr., of Florida.

Born in Lee County, Ky., on 5 May 1864, Colonel Hampton served as Captain, Army Quartermaster, U. S. Volunteers from 7 June 1900, to 30 June 1901, at which time he was honorably discharged. On 21 April 1903, he was appointed a Captain in the Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army, in which organization he served during his entire career.

Colonel Hampton served in many major posts in the United States and in the Philippines. During the World War he served as Assistant to Department Quartermaster, Central Department, Chicago, Illinois, and as Department Quartermaster, Southeastern Department, Charleston, S. C. Following the World War he became Assistant Quartermaster, 9th Corps Area, San Francisco, California, and then Constructing Quartermaster, Ft. Mason, Calif., serving until September 1923.

Colonel Hampton then was assigned to duty in the Office of the Quartermaster General, Washington, D. C., serving as Executive Officer, Construction Service until February 1927, when he became Chief of the Cemeterial Division, Administrative Service, in which capacity he served until he was retired on 5 May 1928.

A eulogy of Maj. Gen. Clarence L. Tinker, USA, who lost his life in the battle of Midway Island, was voiced in the Senate this week by Senator Andrews, of Fla.

Paying tribute both to the soldierly and personal qualities of General Tinker, Senator Andrews said, "One is more impressed as he reviews General Tinker's career when he reflects that he was part Osage Indian. He was born in Oklahoma, and was a graduate of the Wentworth Military Academy at Lexington, Mo. At an early age he entered the Army, where he served almost continually until his death."

"His leadership," continued Mr. Andrews, "was an inspiration to his command and his loss a deep personal one to all who knew him."

made in recognition of "outstanding" acts, are Vice Adm. Arthur P. Fairfield, USN-Ret., Chairman of the Merchant Marine Medal Awards Committee; Capt. Jones F. Devlin, Jr., Marine Superintendent, Division of Operations, War Shipping Administration; Mr. Marshall E. Dimock, Recruiting and Manning Organization, WSA; Comdr. Richard S. Field, USN-Ret., assistant to the Coast Guard commandant, and former director of the Bureau of Marine Inspection and Navigation; Mr. Mark O'Dea, Director, Division of Public Relations, Maritime Commission; Mr. Hubert Wycoff, assistant to Maritime Commissioner Capt. Edward Macauley; and Mr. Frank Rusk, secretary of the committee, and senior administrative assistant.

In announcing rules and regulations to cover award of the medal, the Maritime Commission said this week: "It is recognized that the average seaman going to sea is rendering splendid service to the nation every day and is entitled to the appreciation and gratitude of the public." Then, stressing that the medal award would follow only some "outstanding" act, the Commission said: "The word 'outstanding' . . . must be construed literally in the sense that the person to whom an award is made will have distinguished himself above and beyond the excellent standard maintained by the merchant marine seamen as a whole."

It is expected that the medal will be ready for issue within a few months; and in the meantime the Awards Committee has announced that it desires reports on the heroism of seamen from the following sources:

Masters, chief engineers and other officers of vessels through the ship operators; Naval intelligence officers in the various ports, in accordance with arrangements made with the Director of Naval Intelligence; District Directors and District Managers of the War Shipping Administration; officers and officials of the Coast Guard through the District Coast Guard officer who is requested to forward reports to the Awards Committee with his recommendation; officers of the Navy and Army who come in official contact with the merchant marine; consuls and other officers of the foreign service; officers of the U. S. Public Health Service; officials of officers' and seamen's unions; any citizen, not included in the above list, who has personal and direct knowledge of an act of distinguished service.

West Point

(West Point, Moulder of Men, by Maj. William H. Baumer, Jr., U. S. M. A., 1933, D. Appleton-Century Co., New York, London, 1942, 264 pages, $3.00.)

RARELY has a people looked to an institution for so much as an American people is today looking to the Military Academy at West Point. For it will be on the success or failure of its present and past graduates that the success or failure of the war effort will largely depend.

So it is that today, in 1942, West Point Moulder of Men comes as a book of much interest to citizens, lay and military alike. Written by Maj. William H. Baumer, Jr., a graduate of the Military Academy class of 1933, and presently a public relations officer and instructor of History at West Point, the book presents the rich story of West Point. At the same time, it recounts to the reader the type of education—military, liberal, and physical—which future Army officers are receiving, and always in a style full of reader interest. An intimate association with the Academy first as a student and now as a public relations officer and instructor has given to Major Baumer the background with which such a successful book is possible.

A reading of West Point, Moulder of Men, and a subsequent analysis of the life of a cadet from the many angles presented in the book, leaves the reader appreciative of the statement of Maj. Gen. Francis B. Wilby, Superintendent of the Military Academy, who says in the foreword:

"Through 145 years, the United States Military Academy has played a mighty part in shaping and preserving the Nation. In times of peaceful expansion it has produced railway and canal builders, makers of rivers and harbor improvements, educators, explorers, public officials, business and professional men. In times of war," he says, "there have been a Grant, a Pershing, a MacArthur." He might well have added the names of Wainwright, Kelly, and Nimitz, these among many others.

West Point, Moulder of Men tells the story of what was behind these heroes, and in its skillful telling informs readers what they may expect of future Academy graduates on the basis of the present program.

Transfer of Dependents

The Comptroller General has held that the intent and purpose of section 12 of the act of 7 March 1942, authorizing certain transportation for dependents and household and personal effects of persons on active duty who are reported as injured, dead, missing as the result of military or naval operations, etc., was to provide for certain situations arising from military or naval operations incident to actual warfare, and, therefore, there is no authority under said section for the movements of dependents, etc., of a Navy officer who was killed while on temporary duty performing official travel within the United States by commercial aircraft incident to his regular duties in the Navy Department at Washington.

U. S. COAST GUARD

VICE Adm. Russell R. Waesche, Coast Guard Commandant, has announced relaxation of requirements for Coast Guard Reserve candidates, and at the same time it is reported that plans have been formulated to expand the Reserve classes from a monthly quota of 75 to 300 per month.

Where previously only single men were accepted for duty as Reserve officer students, married men may now apply, if their wives consent. The minimum height requirement has been lowered from five feet, six inches, to five feet, five inches. There has been a slight relaxation in education requirements in that an applicant must have had at least one semester course in mathematics of college grade and one semester of trigonometry in either high school or college. Previously, a full year of mathematics of college grade was required. Candidates must be not less than 20 years of age and not more than 30 at the date of appointment, and must have at least a Bachelor's degree from an accredited college or university.

Coast Guard officials said this week that the June class would have about 75 officer candidates, with the July class to double that number. The August class, it is expected, will have approximately 300 students, all of whom will undergo their instruction at the Coast Guard Academy, New London, Conn.

Officer Changes

Rear Adm. Stanley V. Parker, USCG, has relieved Capt. Ralph W. Dempwolf, USCG, as District Coast Guard officer in the Third Naval District and Capt. John R. Baylis, USCG, as Captain of the Port. Admiral Parker will retain his duties as coordinator of port security protection along the Atlantic Seaboard, Coast Guard officials said this week. Captain Dempwolf, meanwhile, has been assigned to new duties at Cleveland, Ohio.

Graduation Yesterday

Admiral Waesche, accompanied by Capt. Robert Donohue, USCG, Chief Personnel Officer, and Capt. Ellis Reed-Hill, USCG, Chief of the Public Relations Division, represented Coast Guard Headquarters at the graduation yesterday of the regular cadet class and the Coast Guard Reserve class at the Coast Guard Academy, New London, Conn. Rep. Schuyler O. Bland, of Va., Chairman of the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, delivered the graduating address.

Radio Schools Merged

The two Coast Guard radio schools at Ft. Trumbull, New London, Conn., and Curtis Bay, Md., will be merged about 1 July, when new school facilities open at Atlantic City, N. J. The radio schools, which now have a total capacity of 300, will be expanded to provide for the training of 800 enlisted men as a result of the consolidation. It is expected that Lt. Comdr. D. J. Jacobs, USCG, will be commandant of the school, with Lt. M. H. Griffith, USCG, present training officer at Ft. Trumbull occupying the same position at the new school.

The Coast Guardsmen assigned to the radio school will be housed in one of the larger hotels in Atlantic City, while the school will be located in the former Elks Club, leased by the Coast Guard.

Recruiting Change

A Coast Guard directive this week ordered that the recruiting of men shall be delegated to the District Coast Guard Officer, instead of being under the supervision of Coast Guard Headquarters. The move is expected to provide a better supervised recruiting program. It is expected that the District officers will appoint a Recruiting Officer, who it is believed, will probably supervise the procurement of Reserve officers.

Chief Counsel Commissioned

Mr. K. S. Harrison, chief counsel at Coast Guard Headquarters, has been commissioned a commander in the Coast Guard Reserve.

Boxing Champ Commissioned

Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion of the world, has been commissioned as a lieutenant in the Coast Guard Reserve and assigned to duty as physical training director at the Manhattan Beach Training Station.

Coast Guard Explanation

An indication that enemy agents may be using sea-going pleasure vessels to make contact with Axis submarines is contained in a letter addressed this week by Vice Adm. Russell R. Waesche, Commandant of the Coast Guard, to members of the Tuna Club, Atlantic City, N. J., who protested an order prohibiting their boats from exceeding the 12-mile limit.

Medical Administrative Corps

Authority to pay officers of the Medical Administrative Corps promoted up to grade of colonel was asked of Congress this week by the War Department.

The legislation was asked in view of a decision of the Comptroller General that no officer of the Medical Administrative Corps may receive pay above that of a captain.

"The purpose of the proposed legislation," explained Secretary of War Stimson, "is to permit the temporary promotion above the grade of captain of certain officers of the Medical Administrative Corps of the Regular Army, the Officers' Reserve Corps and the National Guard of the United States, during time of war, and to provide that they may receive the pay of such higher grades while so serving."

He stated that the Army proposed to assign Medical Administrative Corps officers of the higher grades to relieve Medical Corps officers from administrative duties. Among the posts which he pointed out could be filled were: medical supply officer in the larger hospitals and medical depots, mess officer in the larger hospitals, commanding officer of medical detachments, commanding officer of detachments of patients, and administrative officers in the Office of the Surgeon General and with port surgeons at ports of embarkation.

"Although the War Department, could probably commission officers from civil life in the Army of the United States without regard to branch, and thereby side-step the ruling of the Comptroller General," said Mr. Stimson, "it is believed advisable to give an opportunity for promotion to experienced officers now holding commissions in the Medical Administrative Corps. These officers cannot, under the present interpretation of the law, draw the pay of any grade above that of captain."

FINANCE

Financial Digest

Pressure by the President will cause the House Ways and Means Committee to report the next tax bill within the next two weeks. While claiming that the government is losing much needed revenue as a result of Committee delay, the President stated this week he did not mean to criticize Congress. But the fact remains that his confirmation of Secretary Morgenthau's "too little and too late" comment has infuriated Capitol Hill. The results to date are rejection of the White House suggestion that the tax bill be split and excise levies enacted immediately, and of the proposal from the same source that incomes be limited to $25,000 after payment of taxes. Nor does it appear that Congress will accept the joint married income tax return, particularly as this would conflict with the laws of nine states. Secretary Morgenthau urged that to insure sufficient funds to provide for Treasury needs and to prevent inflation, the bill to be passed should raise $8.7 billions. To date, the Committee's votes show that it is $2.8 billions short of this amount. No decision yet has been reached as to the lowest income bracket, but it would appear that if the $500 or $600 figure be adopted, privates with base pay of $50 a month would be forced to pay a tax, even though allotments from this sum as provided by the new act were made. It would seem that Congress to be fair should decree that no one serving in the armed forces should be subject to the income tax.

The National Industrial Conference Board has reported that the jobless of the Nation have dropped to 1,750,000 in April. This is cited as justification for the action of the House in abolishing the CCC. However, the President is insisting that this agency be continued and his views will prevail in the Senate and in Conference. Likewise, appropriations will continue for the WPA and the NYA.

The House has appropriated $8,235,000 for the development of guayule and other rubber bearing plants, and from this source it is claimed a substantial supply of rubber will be developed in the next few years. The campaign to collect old rubber and rubber scrap, with filling stations acting as receivers, is making great headway. Secretary Ickes is again urging conversion of oil to coal burners in private homes.

Another step toward industrial wage stabilization is found in the preliminary report of the fact finding panel in the "Little Steel" dispute. The panel is said to support the demand of the United Steel Workers of America (CIO) for $1 a day increase and a union maintenance clause. Join the drive to buy war bonds!

Promote 2 Navy Captains

The Senate late this week received the nominations of Capt. Timothy J. Keleher and Arthur G. Robinson to be rear admirals in the Navy for temporary service.

Address USNA Grads

Advising the 1942 graduating class of Midshipmen at the Naval Academy not to scoff at uniforms other than their own, to remember that the American blue-jacket cannot be fooled, and that "machines are as nothing without men—and men are as nothing without morale," Admiral Ernest J. King, Commander-in-Chief of the United States Fleet, on 19 June 1942 welcomed 611 officers into the Navy. Said he:

"The means of building—and maintaining—high morale and the consequent effective team-work can be summed up in one word—discipline—a word very much misunderstood and very much abused. True discipline is intelligent obedience to each for the consequent effectiveness of all...."

"Take all proper pride in the prestige and power of the Navy but do not forget that the other great armed service—the United States Army—also wears the uniform of our country—as do our fellow services of the Navy—the Marine Corps and the Coast Guard.

"You will soon find yourselves in daily contact with enlisted men. A great many of them will be experienced in the ways of the Navy and particularly capable in their several specialties. If you are smart, you will listen to what they say of their various jobs, because they know more about them than you do—or will—until you have had their experience. Other men, you will find, are inexperienced. It will be part of your duty to instruct them. In any event, remember that their respect must be earned—it cannot be gained otherwise—and the best way to earn it is to learn everything there is to know about your job. You cannot fool the American blue-jacket, and I advise you not to try. You can, however, readily gain his loyalty and earn his respect. You will then have something that money cannot buy."

Capt. William N. Thomas (ChC), USN, delivered the invocation; Admiral King was introduced by Rear Adm. John R. Beardall, USN, the Superintendent; then came the address and presentation of diplomas, followed by conferring the degree of Bachelor of Science; after which the graduates sang "Navy Blue and Gold" for the last time in unison. This was followed by the playing of "Star Spangled Banner" by the Academy Band, and the parting cheers.

The following awards, meanwhile, were presented at the prize ceremony on 17 June. Awards and their recipients are:

Merchant Marine

The War Shipping Administration announced the creation this week of the Division of Maritime Labor Relations and Rear Adm. Emory S. Land, USN-Ret., War Shipping Administrator, appointed Capt. Edward Macauley, USN-Ret., as Deputy Administrator of the War Shipping Administration, to supervise the activities of the new division.

Captain Macauley will supervise the formulation of the general labor policy of the War Shipping Administration, co-operating closely with other activities of the shipping agency concerned with the recruitment of personnel and the manning of vessels of the United States and United Nations.

Meanwhile Mr. Hubert Wyckoff has been appointed Director and Mr. Enrich Nielsen, Assistant Director, of the new division. Mr. Nielsen has been assigned to attend the Joint Maritime Commission of the International Labor Office as observer. This meeting will be held in London, commencing 22 June.

Stamp Design

The Maritime Eagle, official symbol of the Maritime Commission, has been chosen as the basic design for the new war stamp to be put on sale 4 July. The Eagle used on the new war stamp will vary from the Maritime Eagle in the removal of the anchor and substitution of the words "Wins the War" instead of "Ships for Victory."

President Roosevelt inaugurated the wearing of the symbol by shipyard and factory workers on Maritime Day, 25 May, when yards building ships for the Victory Fleet launched 27 ships. The workers' badge consists of the Maritime Eagle on a red disk.

Officers and men of the merchant marine also wear a Maritime Eagle pin. Officers' pins are gold, seamen's are silver. In keeping with the tradition of the sea, the Eagle rests on an anchor, its wings upraised to form the "V" of Victory.

Concrete Ship

The award of a contract to McCloskey & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., for the construction of 24 reinforced concrete cargo vessels, has been announced by the Maritime Commission. The 24 vessels, which will be built at a new shipyard to be built at Tampa, Fla., will be 300 feet in length and will have a deadweight tonnage of 2,200 tons. They will be single screw and propelled by steam reciprocating engines smaller than those now installed in the vessels of the Liberty Ships.

Meanwhile, the Commission has under construction or contract 33 reinforced concrete barges, which are non-propelled and must be towed.

WAAC's Chosen Soon

Training for the first group of officer candidates for the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps will begin 15 July at Ft. Des Moines, Iowa.

The class will include 375 women selected in approximately equal proportion from the thousands of applicants in the nine Corps Areas and 65 women from the voluntary Aircraft Warning Service.

Physical examinations and final interviews for the candidates who have passed preliminary tests now are being held in the various Corps Areas. The interviews are being conducted by Army officers and by women who are skilled in personnel work and character judging.

Information on the 500 candidates in all areas who receive the highest rating will be forwarded to WAAC headquarters in Washington, D. C.

The week of 29 June members of the selection committees will meet at headquarters with Director Oveta Culp Hobby and final choice of officer candidates will be made.

Training of the officer candidates will be in charge of Col. Don C. Faith, Commandant of the school.

Colonel Faith, who is a native of Indiana, has an impressive military career which dates back to World War I days, when he left the University of Wisconsin prior to graduation to enter service with the 4th Provisional Officer Battalion at Ft. Leavenworth. After the war he filled assignments in China and the Philippines as well as in the United States.

The curriculum for the WAAC trainees as outlined by Colonel Faith will embody military fundamentals but will, in the main, stress leadership and officer qualifications.

"Leadership means self control but not arrogance," Colonel Faith said. "It means the ability to understand as well as to command. It is the essential of a good officer."

The course of study as outlined by the Commandant will include military courtesies and ceremonies, military discipline, military drill and military health and sanitation.

Officer candidates will be thoroughly grounded in first aid, gas mask drill, aircraft identification, mess management, and mass life requisites. Considerable time will be devoted to administrative duties such as the preparation of morning reports, payroll records, compilation of military files, personnel records, etc.

Students also will be trained in inspection routine and the care and equipment of clothing.

The officer candidates will live on a schedule which will enable them to make the transition from civilian to military life as quickly and easily as possible.

For six days a week there will be seven 45-minute class periods and one 45-minute drill period in addition to regular camp routine. The seventh day will be one of rest and relaxation. At this time members of the WAAC may change their official uniforms for civilian dress and may leave the fort if they desire. They will not be permitted to go outside the city of Des Moines, however, unless official leave has been obtained.

The basic training course will be completed in six weeks. Officer candidates then will be commissioned according to individual achievement records. Those who do not qualify for a commission will remain in the corps as auxiliaries, a status comparable to that of Army privates.

After the commissioning, a two-week course dealing with specialized duties of the various officers will be given.

The new officers will be qualified to assume their duties 15 Sept. 1942, when auxiliaries arrive at Ft. Des Moines.

Recruiting of these auxiliaries is expected to begin late in July, and by June of 1943 the strength of the WAAC is anticipated to be approximately 1600. As the organization expands, new officers will be promoted from the ranks.

Ft. Des Moines is an established military post embracing 640 acres and composed of both permanent and temporary buildings. It has been serving as a reception and induction center for the Army. This activity will be moved elsewhere.

The fort at present has accommodations for 1500 but expansion which ultimately will permit accommodation of 5500 is contemplated.

Adequate recreational facilities will be provided and another church to supplement the one already existing at the fort is planned.

Members of the WAAC will serve with the Army on military reservations and in Zones of Operations, performing duties which will release Army personnel for actual combat service.

On 12 June 1942, Director Hobby went before a House Appropriations Subcommittee and requested an appropriation of $22,000,000 to meet WAAC expenses. She was assured it would be given. "We will approve the full amount," said Chairman Snyder (Dem., Penna.) of the subcommittee hearing a War Department request for $39,000,000 for the next fiscal year.

Now as to wearables: In the first place, the "women of the Army" will be given two girdles at the beginning of their course and one each year following. Their service uniforms have already been mentioned. But besides these, they will each be given: one cotton and one wool bathrobe; three brassieres; six rayon drawers; two exercise suits; five pairs of gloves, including one leather pair and another leather with wool lining; one muffler; two pairs of cotton and two pairs of flannelette pajamas; four pairs of dress shields; eight shirtwaists; one pair of barracks slippers; three slips; eight pairs of cotton and eight pairs of rayon hose; one sweater; one lotion bottle; one clothes brush; three tooth brushes; two shower caps; one comb; one soap holder; one "housewife" kit of needles, thread and the like; one cream jar; one mirror; one pair of sunglasses; four bath towels; one first-aid packet; one meat can, cup, fork, knife and spoon.

In addition, each will be given eight pairs of cotton and eight of rayon hose each year, and the commanding officer may authorize wool undershirts and drawers if the weather necessitates these heavier articles.

Reduce Officers in Washington

There are said to be far too many men with shoulder bars in jobs of soft security—at least, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson says there are. Thousands of these are to be displaced by members of the Army Specialist Corps in every part of the country. What is more, he says that the men displaced may be shorn of their rank and forced to the duties of privates if they are found not to possess the qualities an officer must have. The Specialists will be a uniformed force.

"We have far too many officers sitting about in Washington and are determined that many of them should be in the armed forces," he said. "It has been one of my main endeavors to change this condition—to get officers in the field, where they belong—and to keep here only those who are absolutely essential to the war effort."

"We can displace these men in the Army by those who are not able to fight an intensive war."

"You would be surprised if you knew the strings that have been pulled by able young men who have wanted to shirk their duty in order to get an officer's commission and a place tucked carefully away in an office far back of the fighting front where they belong."

All commanders and heads of activities have been ordered to reorganize their work so as to reduce officer personnel wherever possible. These duties will be assumed by Army Specialists, who will be used only to replace officers. Civilians and women will replace non-commissioned officers and privates.

Secretary Stimson has outlined to Director General Dwight L. Davis of the Specialist Corps the basic policies to be followed in choosing the Specialists. His directive reads:

"All political or personal considerations will be rigidly excluded and care will be exercised to insure the appointment of men who are fully qualified and specifically needed. Any attempt to provide employment for men seeking a job, or pay at a higher rate than that received in civil life, is contrary to approved policies and, of course, cannot be tolerated. Moreover, it will be necessary to insure that every reasonable measure is taken to avoid use of the Army Specialist Corps as a means of evading active military duty under the Selective Service Act."

The fundamental basis for appointment and employment of individuals in the Specialist Corps, the Secretary said, will be that their services, whether in an administrative, professional, scientific, or technical capacity, will release military personnel for combat or command duties. Such appointment and employment will not be made when it will result in the release of a civilian now performing the duty, unless the agency requesting the appointment can show that the job now being filled by the civilian should be filled by a commissioned officer.

Appointments in grades below that of second lieutenant in the Specialist Corps, to fill positions in the continental United States, will be made only in the most exceptional circumstances, and when approved by the Secretary of War. All recommendations by the Director General for appointment in the Corps must be referred to the War Department Personnel Board for approval.

The Military Personnel Division of the Service of Supply will establish procurement objectives for arms and services and other War Department agencies requiring the services of individuals for duties that can be performed by persons without general military training. No such procurement objective will be approved solely to permit the appointment of a specific individual, nor will any appointment be considered unless recommended under an approved procurement objective by the chief of the branch involved.

Applicants will be advised that appointment in the Army Specialist Corps does not of itself alter the appointee's liability for military service under the Selective Service Act.

In general, persons coming under the following headings will not be eligible for appointment in the Army Specialist Corps:

Those liable for military service, when their current classification under Selective Service is Class I-A-O, I-B-O, IV-E, or IV-E-L-S; those who are under 30 years of age, unless permanently disqualified; physically, for general military service; those who are over 30 and under 45, when their current classification is Class I-A; and those deferred for occupational reasons, who, in the opinion of Selective Service, should not be released.

Exceptions to these requirements will be considered only in extraordinary cases where the individual has special qualifications for a duty vital to the war effort, for which no other qualified person is available. Where such an exception is sought, the circumstances will be carefully considered by a board composed of officers of the Corps appointed by the Director General. The findings of this board in case of approval will be coordinated with the Selective Service System.

Army, Navy Medals

Two bills, one designed to create a new medal for the Army and the other intended to revise the Navy's medal system, were called up in the House this week but were passed over at the suggestion of Representative Cole, of N. Y.

Mr. Cole, a member of the House Naval Affairs Committee, suggested that action on the bills be delayed until members of the Naval and Military Affairs Committee can confer and "go over this entire matter of making these awards."

Continued Mr. Cole, "There is no question but that this is an important matter, important to the successful prosecution of the war, but I do feel that we should proceed rather cautiously not only in creating these awards for valor but in making the awards themselves, so that the recipients of them will feel that they have been given some real recognition for their services and that after they receive it, it will not be cheapened by some careless distribution of it."

The Army bill, S. 2404, authorizes personnel of the armed forces to accept decorations tendered by governments of belligerent nations or of South American republics. It also creates a new "Legion of Merit" medal for award to members of armed forces of other nations and to members of the Army of the United States whose service has been meritorious.

The Navy bill, S. 2456, systemizes the Navy's system of medals, creating an additional decoration, the "Silver Star."

The House Military Committee later obtained a rule for consideration of S. 2404, guaranteeing full consideration for the bill at an early date.

Praise for Journal Reporter

Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, at his press conference on 18 June 1942, spoke many kind words about Norman L. Yost, formerly of the staff of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL. Said the Secretary: "Another to leave us has been young Norman Yost of the reportorial staff of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL, who has returned to his home in West Virginia to become city editor of The Fairmont Times. He will be missed and I know you join me in wishing him all the best."

The Secretary noted that Milton Bronner, NEA Service reporter for 42 years, has retired to his home at Louisville, Ky.; that James Warner of the Washington bureau of the Providence Journal has gone to the press division of the Office of Censorship to assist Byron Price; that Ed Flynn is now city editor of the New York Post; and that Herbert Bayard Swope is to join the Department's Bureau of Public Relations as consultant.
